Mine Owners Reject Code, Reconsider It; Limit Nears

Very Difficult Situation "Bridged Over," Says Gen. Johnson.

General Expects Pact Agreement

Appalachian Bituminous Coal Operators Are Silent on Plans.

Appalachian bituminous coal operators yesterday tossed back to the NRA the code presented by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, and after a hurriedly called three-hour session with the recovery chief agreed to continue negotiations.

"A very difficult situation has been bridged over," Gen. Johnson said after the conference. Representatives of the operators refused to talk.

"I think we will get an agreement on the code," Johnson added. But how close the months-old negotiations came to blowing up was indicated by the reticence of the general to discuss what went on in the conference and his admission the proposed code "may be changed in many particulars."

May Postpone Hearing.

The day before, when he made public the code, Johnson had said he expected widespread acceptance of its provisions but if the operators refused to accept it he would impose it on them.

The 6 p. m. today limit for filing written objections to the code still stood but the final public hearing which had been fixed for 2:30 p. m. Monday may be postponed a day. The postponement was suggested by K. M. Simpson, deputy administrator in charge of the coal negotiations, the administrator said, adding that he did not expect any further conferences with the Appalachian group.

Rebellion of the operators against the code flared in a meeting at the Shoreham Hotel. The operators framed a letter bluntly saying they had so many objections it was not worth while considering the code.

Refuses to Accept Letter.

The letter was delivered by hand to Johnson when he was at luncheon in the Occidental Hotel. The administrator refused to accept it and, it was said, the letter was thrown on the floor, but was retrieved by Miss Frances Robinson, Johnson's secretary, and carried to NRA headquarters. Returning to his offices Gen. Johnson summoned the operators' committee.

They entered the conference declaring that unless there were modi-

Sleep Plague Kills 7 More

Medical Experts Believe That Dread Disease Is Infectious.

St. Louis, Sept. 8 (AP).—Seven more deaths sent sleeping sickness fatalities to near the 100 mark tonight.

The death list was 98 tonight, and 835 cases have been reported for the St. Louis area.

Scientists were more confident than ever today that the cause and transmission of the malady would be discovered shortly in the investigation underway.

An indication of laboratory progress away from the insect theory of transmission and upholding the original hypothesis that the disease is spread by human carriers, was found today in new restriction orders by health officials.

Dr. J. P. Leake, United States Public Health Service expert, reported today that six monkeys had shown symptoms similar to encephalitis in human beings, after they had been inoculated with material from dying patients.

Experts Encouraged.

(Associated Press.)

The first encouraging results in the attempt to induce sleeping sickness in monkeys for research purposes were reported from St. Louis yesterday to Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming of the public health service.

Dr. J. P. Leake, senior surgeon in charge at St. Louis, said six monkeys had shown symptoms similar to encephalitis in humans after being inoculated with material from dying patients.

Huston, Film Writer, Gets Divorce On Coast

Los Angeles, Sept. 8 (AP).—John Huston, film writer, son of Walter Huston, actor, was granted a divorce today from Dorothy Huston, now touring in Europe with Greta Nissen, actress.

Naval Squadron Makes Record Formation Flight

6 Navy Planes Fly to Canal; Make Record

2,059 Miles Is Longest Mass Formation Hop in History.

(Associated Press.)

Word was flashed to the Navy Department last night of the safe landing at Coco Solo, C. Z., of six naval seaplanes after a 2,059-mile nonstop flight from Norfolk—completing the longest nonstop mass formation flight in history.

Battling through a gale, five of the ships landed at the canal at 6:23 p. m. The sixth plane was nearly an hour behind.

The main body of the flotilla completed the flight in exactly 24 hours and 55 minutes. The takeoff from Norfolk was at 5:30 p. m. Thursday night.

One Plane Slows Down.

The sixth ship, P-12, under Lieut. W. H. Buracker, Winchester, Mass., fell behind the others in the afternoon. Engine trouble slowed it down, but did not force a landing until Coco Solo was reached.

The air fleet passed over Cuba soon after 8 a. m. yesterday morning, cutting straight across the island now in revolution, from a point not far to the east of Havana. Bold direction by Lieut. Comdr. D. M. Carpenter, flight commander, aided in success of the record effort.

Balbo Flight Recalled.

Naval officials said Gen. Italo Balbo, air marshal of Italy, made one jump with his air fleet of 1,884 miles in a flight to Brazil in 1931.

Balbo's longest mass flight on his recent trip to the United States was one of 1,677. It came on the jump from Shoals Harbor, N. F., to the Azores on the return trip and involved 25 planes.

Officers on the flight included Lieut. Comdr. Herman E. Halland, Fargo, N. Dak., and Lieuts. H. B. Bowes, State College, Pa.; Robert W. Morse, Binghamtopn, N. Y.; H. W. Taylor, Newark; John L. Ewing, Boston; M. H. Kernodle, Graham, N. C.; J. L. Kane, Brooklyn; Yates Stirling, Baltimore, and Leonard J. Dow, Toledo, who was on the ship with Buracker.

Paraguay Accepts Chaco Peace Plan

Asuncion, Paraguay, Sept. 8 (U.P.).—Paraguay today accepted the plan of Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Peru to end hostilities with Bolivia in the Gran Chaco territory.

The note of acceptance was dispatched to the Brazilian foreign office at Rio De Janeiro thereby ending hostilities. Bolivia has not yet signified acceptance of the plan.

Rio De Janeiro, Sept. 8 (U.P.).—Brazil today regarded the outlook for bringing about peace between Paraguay and Bolivia as "favorable."

Mechanic Falls to Death When Monoplane Loops

Kansas City, Sept. 8 (AP).—John Tobiason, 26, Air Line mechanic, fell to death today in a three-cylinder monoplane which got out of control looping at an altitude of 2,000 feet.

Military Conspiracy Discovered in Brazil

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 8 (AP).—A communique issued tonight said a minor conspiracy had been discovered in the Rio Grande do Sul region and that several soldiers had been arrested.

Severe measures were threatened if further plotting resulted in "abusing the tolerance and generosity of the government."

Rabbit, Not Pursued, Augurs Better Times

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Sept. 8 (AP).—Times are undoubtedly improving in southeast Missouri, says "Doc" Elliott, farmer, of near here. Elliott explains:

"Today while I was coming to town, I saw a rabbit run across the highway, and nobody was after it."

Madman Kills Four and Self In Maine City

Runs Amuck on Street With 4 Weapons, Slaying Victims on Sight.

Belfast, Me., Sept. 8 (AP).—A madman went amuck on the main street of this small city today, killing two men and mortally wounding two others, before he barricaded himself in a blacksmith shop and shot off the top of his head.

The killer was Adrian Jones, former employe of a Massachusetts insane asylum, known to be demented, but generally considered harmless.

The dead were: Herbert E. Ellis, 65, an insurance salesman, and Raymond Blazo, 40, a truckman; R. B. Stanhope, 47, a veterinarian, and W. W. Blazo, 75, father of Raymond.

Jones appeared on the street shortly after the dinner hour brandishing a rifle and shotgun.

As townsfolk scurried for shelter he came upon Ellis and without a word shattered his body with a shotgun blast.

Walking away, he encountered the other victims conversing together. He shot a volley, sending all three crumpling to the sidewalk, and then fled into a blacksmith shop. There he shot himself.

Besides the rifle and the shotgun, he had two revolvers and 400 rounds of ammunition.

Three Military Planes Crash

Fate of Two Mechanics in Parachute Leap Unreported.

Lieut. Arthur L. Logan, pilot of the plane wrecked at Island Park, notified Army officials here he made a parachute leap and escaped injury. His mechanic also jumped from the plane, but his fate was unknown.

Both Maj. John Colgan and his passenger, Sergt. Martin, escaped serious injury when their plane crashed at Freehold.

The last of the planes was accounted for when Lieut. Julius K. Yacey telephoned to Mitchell Field that his plane had crashed near Princeton, N. J., after he and his mechanic had bailed out. The mechanic has not yet been accounted for.

27 Postoffice Positions Abolished by Farley

(Associated Press.)

Promotion of 27 assistant postmasters to acting postmasterships and abolition of the assistant posts was announced yesterday by Postmaster General Farley.

He said the average saving on each office would be more than $3,000, or a total annual saving of more than $82,000.

Ford to Avoid "Finish Fight" Against NRA

Factory Sources Repeat That Terms of Code are Being Met.

Detroit, Sept. 8 (AP).—There will be no "fight to the finish" between the Ford Motor Co. and the National Recovery Administration, it was learned from an authoritative source today, because the Ford Company feels it is complying with the code and there is nothing to fight about.

"The code doesn't have to be signed in order to comply with its terms," was the statement. "Nobody has to sign anything as long as they observe the provisions of the NRA."

Perhaps Henry Ford will sign the code—perhaps he won't. Ford alone knows that.

At the company's plant today it was said entire compliance with the recovery act is possible without Ford's signature.

Although not Ford's own statement, it was represented as being the opinion of the Ford Company.

The company believes it is "going it (the code) one better" in dealing with employes.

Ford, it was also stated, is "dealing with the matter," but the manner of his dealing was not explained.

The company believes there is no necessity for a "reply" to statements of NRA officials and it does not believe Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, is totally out of sympathy with the Ford Co.

Idaho to Shun Ford.

Boise, Idaho, Sept. 8 (AP).—Gov. C. Ben Ross announced today that failure of Henry Ford to abide by the NRA cooperative code would be followed by refusal of this State to buy motor cars he makes.

"If Ford refuses to agree to cooperate with the Government in wage and hour regulations," the governor said, "and to agree with codes established by the rest of the industry, the State will buy no more automobiles from him."

Balk Chevrolet Union.

St. Louis, Sept. 8 (AP).—Proposal by the Chevrolet assembly plant here today to form an "employes association" was opposed by officials of the Automobile Workers Union, who said it was "purely a so-called company union."

Union employes of the plant have requested President Roosevelt to forbid the company from displaying the Blue Eagle, alleging that it violated the code by dismissing employes because of union activity.

Use of Politics In Relief Hit By Roosevelt

(Associated Press.)

Asserting that he looked upon governmental relief work as of an emergency type, President Roosevelt yesterday told a human needs conference that the duty in the end would be restored to "individual citizens, to individual responsibility, to private organizations."

"We are going to have unemployed throughout the United States and we know it," he said. "I hope, though, the time is going to come soon when everybody who normally wants a permanent job is going to get it. And so I like to think of Government relief of all kinds as emergency relief."

Some States Remiss, He Says.

To delegates attending the third annual Mobilization for Human Needs Conference, Mr. Roosevelt criticized areas "coming hat in hand" to the Government without doing their own relief share.

"There have been States which have not done their share," the Chief Executive said. "States where the problems of relief have gotten mixed up with politics; legislatures that are thinking in political, and not in human terms.

"There are municipalities which are going ahead with the spending of taxes for political purposes and then find they haven't any money left for relief purposes.

People Force Action.

"I am glad to say that those individual cases are diminishing in number because the people of this country understand it and are telling the government bodies, local or State, that they have got to 'play ball' and not shirk."

As the conference set about its task of furthering community charity chests, and reminding the people that Governments alone can not carry the burden, Frank B. Kellogg, a former Secretary of State, said the main obstacle to its work was the belief the Government would supply relief funds.

John Stewart Bryan, publisher of the Richmond News-Leader, in formally starting the conference's sessions later at the Mayflower Hotel, said the necessity for community help was not minimized by "95 per cent of the material unemployment relief load" being carried by State, Federal and local governments.

Judge Morgan O'Brien, of New York, called upon the delegates at a night session to stand by the Government in its recovery program and to remember the demands of private charity.

Azana Forced Out of Power

Lerroux Likely to Take Place As Premier of Spain.

Madrid, Sept. 8 (U.P.).—The government of Premier Manuel Azana was forced by the hammering tactics of its powerful opposition to resign today.

It was believed he would name Alejandro Lerroux, leader of the opposition who forced the Azana ministry out, to form a new cabinet.

Lerroux contended that despite the vote of confidence given Azana's ministry in the Cortes (parliament), Azana no longer had the popular support of the people in the republic and should retire.

Bodies of Three Mountain Climbers Found in Glacier

Searchers Report Victims Stumbled Into Chasm During Storm.

Portland, Oreg., Sept. 8 (AP).—Three men who essayed to climb the cliffs and cross the ice fields of towering Mount Jefferson met death in their attempt. The bodies were found late today.

The men disappeared Labor Day during a snowstorm. Searchers exploring the crevasses about the Whitewater Glacier, just below the summit of the 10,500-foot peak, came upon the bodies of Davis McCamant, Don Burkhardt and John Thomas, of Portland, on a crevasse shelf.

Meager information from the searchers indicated the men, probably near exhaustion, tumbled into the chasm and were too weak to extricate themselves.

The searchers found the bodies after a hunt that started yesterday. Exhaustion from their battle against the treacherous east slope and the elements left them unable to return with the bodies to the Olallie Lake base, and a pack train of five horses was sent to accomplish the task.

First indication that tragedy had visited the mountain come with the discovery of a motor car the trio had used on the trip from here to Olallie Lake last Tuesday.

The searchers were hindered by fresh snow that had fallen since Monday. A 40-mile gale whipped the snow into large drifts.

Soviet Guards Shoot Pilot of Drifting Plane

Warsaw, Poland, Sept. 8 (AP).—Soviet guards today fired upon a Polish tourist plane when it strayed across the border due to a defective compass.

The pilot was wounded in the arm and the plane was damaged in landing. The guards apologized.

Germany's Jobless Drops.

Berlin, Sept. 8 (AP).—A reduction in unemployment of 207,000 for the second half of August was reported by the government today.

Cuban Radicals Plan Rule Through Coalition Under New President

(Associated Press.)

While American warships dashed to new trouble spots in Cuba yesterday, President Roosevelt postponed plans for a week-end fishing trip to keep in closest touch with the situation.

Coast Guard cutters went scampering to four points on the troubled island where there were reports of disorders that might endanger foreigners, but Ambassador Welles, in a telephone report to Secretary Hull last night, said no forces had been landed.

There had been recurrent reports during the day of American forces being landed on Cuan soil, but the American ambassador at Havana told the Secretary of State the only men who had gone ashore were two radio experts to repair the embassy's radio.

Cutters on Guard.

During a day of swift-moving developments the Coast Guard cutters were sent to Puerto Padre, 100 miles from the eastern tip of the island; Matanzas and Cardenas, both within 100 miles of Havana to the east, and Antilla, important sugar-shipping port on the northeast tip of Cuba.

To the State Department late in the day, Marquez Sterling, who was named Ambassador from Cuba by the now fallen De Cespedes government, brought word that the fateful session of leaders was "proceeding favorably," and under the apparent determination to stick to its task until a plan for forming a government had taken shape.

Considerable importance, too, was attached to information that Foreign Minister Puig of Mexico had sent a message to Argentina, Chile and Brazil asking for their cooperation in bringing influence to bear on the present Cuban authorities to maintain order and protect lives.

Latins Were Consulted.

This action followed President Roosevelt's move Wednesday night in calling the envoys of Mexico and other Latin-American countries to the White House to go over the threatening Cuban situation.

Americans here well acquainted with conditions felt that much depended on the speed with which the efforts under way at Havana to form a coalition government could be consummated.

Officials made it no secret they regarded the situation as most dangerous and unstable. While Ambassador Sumner Welles is working night and day at Havana, the administration is carefully avoiding identifying itself with any one Cuban faction.

Lest its interest be misconstrued, the administration decided that Secretary Swanson, reaching Havana yesterday, should not land but simply be greeted on board ship by Ambassador Welles before continuing on to the Pacific Coast on an inspection trip.

Cannon Appeals To Supreme Court

Bishop Acts to Block Trial On U. S. Indictment.

(Associated Press.)

Bishop James Cannon, jr., and his secretary, Ada L. Burroughs, asked the Supreme Court yesterday to review the decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals requiring them to stand trial on an indictment charging violation of the Federal corrupt practices act.

The Federal Government obtained the indictment alleging they failed to report contributions received in their campaign against former Gov. Alfred E. Smith in 1928.

The District of Columbia Supreme Court held the indictment defective, but the District Court of Appeals reversed the decision and required the defendants to stand trial.

Nazis Ask German Help To Fight Dollfuss Rule

Berlin, Sept. 8 (U.P.).—An appeal to Germans to support Austrian Nazis in their fight against the "Dollfuss separatist regime" was broadcast tonight from the Nazi party's propaganda headquarters.

The appeal declared Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss defended his regime "by lies, terror, treason and violations of the constitution." It added existence of Germans in Austria was threatened.

Passengers Removed From Grounded Vessel

Buzzards Bay, Mass., Sept. 8 (AP).—The 65 passengers on the steamship Ontario of the Merchant & Miners Line, which went aground in Cape Cod Canal last night, were removed late today and sent on their way by rail.

Canal officials said they would try to float the ship at high tide. The vessel was bound from Boston to Philadelphia.

Buyer Can't Find Island Purchased For Back Taxes

Quincy, Ill., Sept. 8 (AP).—Any one along the Mississippi River finding Island No. 24, please return it to Fred Brinkoetter, of Quincy.

Brinkoetter applied in county court today to have the island removed from the tax lists.

"I bought it at a tax sale," he explained. "I cruised every inch of the river described in the deed, but there was no island anywhere."

Oil Hits Top As NRA Code Takes Effect

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 8 (AP).—The effective date of the oil code arrived simultaneously today with a 15-cent crude oil advance that brought the best Oklahoma-Kansas grade to a new 1933 peak of 97 cents a barrel.

Most purchasing companies posted the advance. Others are expected to meet the new prices tomorrow.

North and north central Texas and north Louisiana oil was increased to 92 cents a barrel. The new east Texas price is 90 cents flat rate. A dominant buyer posted a top price of 81 cents for best Gray County grade for the Panhandle district of Texas.

Announced advances were the second to come in two days, all purchasers having posted a 10 cent increase September 6 and brought oil within another easy step of the $1.11 figure Secretary Ickes' planning and coordinating committee, supervising the oil code, has indicated it considers a fair price.

Roosevelt Calls Session.

A first-hand study of the adaptation of the $12,000,000,000 oil industry to Government supervision under an NRA code, along with the question of price regulation, will be taken up Monday by President Roosevelt and his chief recovery aids.

Vessel Sunk 107 Years Discovered in River

Buenos Aires, Sept. 8 (U.P.).—Dredgers in the River Plate today discovered the hull of the old wooden battleship Veintecinco de Mayo, which was sunk after a battle with the Brazilian navy in 1826.

The vessel, the flagship of the first Argentine navy, was commanded by an Irishman, Admiral Billy Brown.

Cosgrave's Faction Joins Blue Shirts

Dublin, Irish Free State, Sept. 8 (AP).—The party of former President William T. Cosgrave and the Center party today agreed to merge with the blue-shirted National Guard into a United Ireland party under the leadership of Gen. Eoin O'Duffy, head of the latter group.

Lost Balloon Racer Sighted in Canada

Two Quebec Men Report Bag Over Lake.

Quebec, Que., Sept. 8 (AP).—Two Quebec business men, returning here tonight from a fishing trip at Lac Bon Lac, brought word of sighting a balloon on Monday 13 miles from Riviere a Pierre, a small village in the Laurentian Mountains, 60 miles northwest of Quebec.

It was believed it may have been one of the two missing balloons in the James Gordon Bennett Cup race.

They said they saw the bag sailing about 30 feet over the lake and that the two men in the basket appeared to be throwing out ballast. Shortly after it was sighted a thunderstorm blew up and they lost sight of it.

Newton D. Baker Ill With Heart Attack

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 8 (AP).—A mild heart disorder confined Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, to bed here for the last six days. Mr. Baker was able to be up today but he will not return to his office until Monday.

Dr. R. W. Scott said, "he requires periods of relaxation from business and other cares."

(Copyright, 1933, by The Associated Press.)

Havana, Sept. 8.—The executive commission of five now ruling Cuba has under consideration a change in the present form of government involving the probable selection of a president, Sergio Carbo, a member of the junta, said tonight.

This latest turn in the political picture came as the United States cruiser Indianapolis, with Secretary of the Navy Swanson aboard, dropped anchor in the harbor. Two hours later the cruiser sailed for Panama. The Cabinet officer did not come ashore during the brief stay.

Agitators made the most of their opportunities as the Indianapolis pulled in, haranguing the crowd at the waterfront. They declared American ships had come to kill Cubans.

"Inclined" to Coalition.

"As matters now stand," Carbo asserted, "we are inclined to form a coalition cabinet, with representatives of all opposition sectors that have cooperated with us in our revolutionary work."

This indication of the junta's attitude followed shortly a flat refusel to restore De Cespedes, outed by last Monday's noncommissioned officers' coup. A commission set up to conciliate the different political views met in secret.

Carbo was asked whether the president would be one of the members of the present junta. He replied that was "the most probable solution."

Situation Believed Eased.

Government officials viewed the situation as less dangerous than yesterday and this view seemed reflected in other quarters.

Sergt. Fulgencio Batista, who led Monday's coup, told a crowd gathered at the presidential palace not to believe "the false rumors being propagated."

Martinez Fraga, Menocal follower, also expressed belief there had been an amelioration in the situation.

Batista later was promoted to the rank of colonel and made chief of the army staff, contrary to previous assertions that he had no desire to advance in rank. Sergts. Pablo Rodriquez and Jose Pedraza were named as aids. Second Lieut. Felipe Lois was appointed navy chief of staff.

Message From Swanson.

Earlier Batista, standing on the balcony of the national palace, read in Spanish what he said was a translation of a wireless message from Secretary Swanson. He read:

"I have stopped in Havana a short time to visit United States Ambassador Sumner Welles, and I hope my visit does not cause any oppression, because I was invited by the Cuban Congress some time ago, when I obtained ratification from the United States Senate of the treaty ceding of Isle of Pines to Cuba. The treaty was pending for 30 years in the Senate before it was approved.

"There is no disposition on the part of the United States to intervene in Cuba. We simply want peace and order from a neighbor so near. The United States naval forces sent here are only to protect American lives, and not to intervene in the government of Cuba.

"The people of Cuba can and will solve their problems. We hope that they will solve them with justice and generosity. We desire happiness and prosperity for Cuba."

Roosevelt Asks Tax Plan Study Pending Repeal

To assure early passage of liquor taxes and import tariffs in the new session of Congress, the President instructed Acting Secretary of the Treasury Dean Acheson to make a thorough study of the entire problem. It is expected import duties on liquors will be the first phase of the Treasury inquiry, in an effort to avoid excessive imports between repeal in America and the time domestic producers attain their full stride.

The United States Tariff Commission will participate in the study.

Petitions for an embargo on foreign liquors, and requests for equalization tariffs have been presented to the Treasury and Justice Departments. Other suggestions of the domestic industries have linked prospective wine and liquor imports with plans to settle the war debts owed by France, England and Italy. Such suggestions, however, have not been considered seriously.

The second phase of the Treasury investigation will cover effect of anticipated revenues upon the Government's 1935 fiscal program.

Treasury officials indicatetd last night they hoped to have their recommendations ready early in December.

Attorney General Cummings is studying legal precedents to determine when repeal would become effective.

The interval between ratification by the thirty-sixth State and formal promulgation of the repealer by the State Department presents the legal problem.

CROWN PRINCE GHAZI.

Baghdad, Iraq, Sept. 8 (AP).—Crown Prince Ghazi was sworn in today as King of Iraq, succeeding his father, King Feisal, who died suddenly in Berne, Switzerland, of a heart attack.

Touching scenes were enacted when the 22-year-old crown prince was sworn in before the cabinet and then was proclaimed the monarch, with the title of King Ghazi.

Berne, Switzerland, Sept. 8 (AP). Far from the kingdom which he won by the sword and his political skill in company with the famed Lawrence of Arabia, scholarly King Feisal of Iraq died suddenly early today of a heart attack in his hotel here. He was 48.

He returned here only a few days ago from Baghdad, his capital, after interrupting a course of treatment to travel to London for conferences in connection with Assyrian troubles in his country. Six hundred Assyrian Christians were reported killed in disorders in which Iraq troops and Kurds participated.

In recognition of his war service, Great Britain, the former Iraq mandatory power, will transfer the body by destroyer from Genoa, Italy, to Alexandria, Egypt, and thence by airplane to Baghdad.

The king died in bed, in sharp contrast with his romantic life in the Desert of Arabia, where he fought daily with the Turks during the World War in leading a handful of warriors on perilous exploits.

After the great war, his campaign, with the assistance of Lawrence, of Arabia (T. E. Lawrence), resulted in the setting up the kingdom he later was to head.

The king was married in 1906 to Sharifa Huzayma, the daughter of his uncle. One son, the Crown Prince Emir Ghazi, and three daughters—the Princesses Asa, Rajia and Rafia—survive.

U.S. Loans Seen As Aid to Rail Buying Power

President Suggests Plan to Speed Heavy Industries.

As a possible step to hasten recovery of heavy industries, President Roosevelt has proposed to Coordinator Eastman and Secretary Ickes Government loans to railroads for the purchase of rails and equipment. The funds would be loaned by the Public Works Administration.

Before any plan of action is finally decided upon, however, the President feels that current price of steel rails should be reduced. The decline in rail prices since 1929 has not been as great as in other industrial products, according to a preliminary survey recently submitted to the White House.

Eastman already has informally suggested Government railroad loans to some of the managers. They are reported to favor the idea. Eastman, however, is said to share the President's view that rail prices should be reduced before the Federal program is launched.

The President has not yet determined what might be regarded as a fair price for rails. The prevailing price is approximately $41 a ton. The 1929 average was approximately $43.

of the De Cespedes regime, backed the ruling junta in its refusal to consider the return of the provisional president. They were not represented on the conciliation commission of six men and one woman.

The committee went into secret session to consider the many proposals for solution of the turmoil.

Leaders Are Split.

The diversity of opinion in current political thought was reflected at the meeting which culminated in the appointment of the conciliation committee.

While a representative for the junta declared that "the present regime is backed by popular opinion," Col. Aurelio Hevia, representing the Union Nacionalista, held that the present government is not recognized by the United States and that it therefore is not stable.

Fraga expressed the belief that intervention was imminent and that the present turmoil must be quickly solved to prevent such action.

The economic situation was described as most pressing by Martinez Yaenz, who added that the army situation was unbearable.

De Cespedes Group Raided.

Later this evening 175 of Batista's soldiers, supported by members of the ABC and the Student Directory, raided a hotel on learning the entire general staff of De Cespedes, including the former secretary of war, Horacio Ferrer, Gen. Armando Motes and Col. Julio Sanguily, were meeting to determine their future course.

The officers decided not to accept the appointments in the Batista army or to follow his orders.

The major portion of Batista's men left the hotel, but a military guard remained on duty in the lobby. The crowd in the lobby milled about, apparently growing more hostile. It was learned the officers were displeased over reports that four of their number had been seized and imprisoned.

NRA Exception Given Schools And Churches

Code Held Not Applicable Except to Operations in Industry.

Schools, colleges, churches, hospitals and charitable institutions do not come under the NRA, except so far as they operate a trade or industry.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson so ruled yesterday on advice of the Industrial and Labor Advisory Board, headed by Walter Teagle and Dr. Leo Wolman, respectively. Donald R. Richberg, NRA counsel, also backed the ruling.

The decision followed consultation between the NRA and a committee appointed by Dr. Charles R. Mann, director of the American Council of Education. Committee members were Joseph H. Saunders, chairman of the board of trustees, National Education Association; Robert L. Kelly, executive secretary, Association of American Colleges; the Rev. George Johnson, secretary, National Catholic Welfare Conference, and Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of George Washington University.

Mile Drop Kills 'Chute Jumper

St. Paul, Sept. 8 (AP).—William Ash, 24, parachute jumper, was killed when he attempted a 6,000-foot delayed jump at the Minnesota State Fair today.

Twenty thousand persons looked on as he jumped from a plane with a sack of flour under his arm. He opened the sack and a white trail followed as he crashed to the ground, his two parachutes failing to open.

Honolulu, Sept. 8 (AP).—Lieut. Albert F. Hastings of the Air Corps Reserve saved his life today for the second time with a parachute after his plane crashed with another machine at 2,500 feet. He was cut and bruised.

Landing gear of the other plane was torn off, but Sergt. Morris M. Beach landed without injury. The planes were flying in formation.

San Antonio, Sept. 8 (AP).—Two Kelly field flyers resorted to their parachutes and saved their lives today when their planes, part of a formation, collided at 5,000 feet and plunged to destruction.

MacMurray Post To Russia Hinted

Reported Groomed to Go on Recognition.

Appointment of John MacMurray to be Minister to Esthonia, Latvia and Lithuania gave rise to reports last night he was being groomed for American envoy to Russia in the event the Soviet government should be recognized.

These Baltic states for years have been the outpost from which the United States has kept in touch with the Russian situation, and MacMurray goes there thoroughly equipped, the administration believes.

A year ago he made a study of Russian conditions and during the five years he served as Minister to China he became familiar with the Asiatic struggle of China, Japan and the Soviets. He has first-hand information about the old Czarist regime, gained during two years as secretary to the American Embassy in St. Petersburg.

Plan to Reduce Cotton Acreage Almost Ready

Program, With Executive Indorsement, Will Be Announced Soon.

A cotton production control program for 1934 and 1935 has been approved by President Roosevelt and its outlines are expected to be announced today or early next week by Secretary Wallace.

Two main features include crop reduction for next year to around 25,000,000 acres and a virtual guarantee of parity price to the grower on a portion of his cotton.

This guarantee, as applied to each cotton-producing county, would be almost half its production over the five-year average from 1928 through 1932, since domestic consumption in the period approached one-half.

County committees would make the allotments to farms on the basis of production during the period. If a farmer grew 100 bales yearly, next year he would be assured the parity price on about 50 bales.

The program means virtual shelving of the plan which sought control of the cotton crop through a system which would limit the number of bales that might be ginned next year.

Farm Administration experts have estimated that about $85,000,000 would go to Southern farmers who cooperated in the effort to adjust the cotton supply to demand.

Pope and Nazis Face Deep Rift

Religious Policies of Hitler Hold Up Concordat.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Vatican City, Sept. 8 (U.P.).—A serious breach between the Holy See and Nazi Germany over failure of the Vatican to ratify the German Concordat, initialed here last month, was believed imminent tonight.

The United Press learned the Vatican is withholding ratification of the Concordat with Berlin because of reported displeasure on the part of Pope Pius XI with the religious policy of Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

The Pope's displeasure with Hitler's religious policy was understood to be based on the following points:

1. Catholic education in Germany under the Nazis has been made difficult because of the ascendancy of the Lutheran Evangelical Church there.

2. The German government required the Catholic seminarists to fulfill the military service requirements, despite the provision in the Concordat that they were to be exempt.

3. Activities of the Catholic Action Society in certain instances has been hindered by police regulations.

4. The establishment of 11 new evangelical episcopates in the Lutheran Church in Prussia.

Forgetting political differences, Democratic and Republican Roosevelts continued to fraternize yesterday at the White House. The family reunion began Thursday, when Theodore Roosevelt, jr., Republican and former Governor General of the Philippines, returned from Europe on the same boat with Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr.

Theodore was a luncheon guest at the White House. President Roosevelt wanted to know about conditions in 17 countries through which his cousin traveled. Theodore was on the speakers' stand when President Roosevelt addressed the Mobilization for Human Needs Conference on the White House south lawn.

Prison Goods To Be Ruled By NRA Code

Officials From 27 States Accept Principles for Convict Industries.

Prison industries will be covered under a code drafted and submitted yesterday before a conference of State penal executives.

At a meeting in the Ambassador Hotel, prison authorities discussed advisability of presenting such a code to the NRA.

Although provisions of the code were not made public, it was learned that representatives of 27 State penal institutions throughout the country were in accord with its phrasing and contents. Nine other institutions, unable to send representation, signified they would "adhere to any code of fair competition."

A lengthy discussion of prison labor problems formed a greater portion of the meeting. John J. Hannan, president of the Wisconsin State Board of Control, was named general chairman of the conference.

All principles of the proposed code were agreed upon yesterday. A committee was appointed to iron out phrasing, and the revised code will again be presented this morning.

Representatives were selected by the various State governors.

Drafting of the code was completed by the following committee: Sanford Bates, director of Federal prisons; William J. Ellis, commissioner of institutions and agencies of New Jersey; C. L. Stebbins, of the Michigan State Prison Board; Harold E. Donnell, superintendent of Maryland prisons; Mrs. Blanche LaDu, chairman of the Minnesota State Board of Control, and Maj. Rice Yuell, superintendent of Virginia prisons.

New Deal Bars Bar Bouncers

Educated Bartenders Are Promised in Saloon of Future.

Liquor may come back, but it's all going to be different.

Instead of the old-time bartender, the drinks will be served by an educated young man wearing a necktie, and with other embellishments that would make the old-timers fume. Gone also will be the bouncer, and the free lunches—even the "bar flies."

This is the opinion of the National Retail Beer and Liquor Dealers Association, which convened at the Willard Hotel yesterday.

When beer was again legalized in April, this once powerful group reorganized as the Retail Beer Dealers Association. Then, anticipating the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, it resumed its former name.

Realizing the evil of the old-time saloon, the association plans to eliminate that evil by limiting the number of drinks a man can buy and allowing no drunks around the bars. It plans also to train new liquor dispensers.

Melvin was unable to talk coherently last night. He first appealed for help to a farm watchman, but disappeared while the man called police. He was found by Rockville firemen after a two-hour hunt.

Inquiry Starts On Bread Price In Seven Cities

Price of Pound Loaf Found 1 Cent Higher Than U. S. Average.

Increases in bread prices which would cost consumers $1,000,000 annually, yesterday led Dr. Fred C. Howe, consumer's counsel of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, to order an investigation in seven cities.

They are Atlanta, Charleston, Mobile, San Francisco, Savannah, Scranton and Seattle.

The price of a pound loaf in these cities, he said, is 1 cent higher than the national average, and in one case reaches 3.1 cents for a pound loaf.

In other cities prices continued to check with increasing material costs. Dr. Howe did not mention the situation in Washington, where another inquiry is under way into a 1-cent increase.

"Every extra cent charged the public means thousands of dollars less in consumers' pockets at the end of the year," he said. "In the seven cities alone it probably amounts to more than $1,000,000 a year, if we estimate the average consumption per family is one loaf a day.

"Labor costs may explain some differences. Where bakers actually are getting decent wages consumers have no objection, but they have to be shown that is the case.

"The question to every consumer is whether these high prices are due to lowered efficiency in the bakeries or to the competitive situation."

Hatfield Assails Program of NRA

Calling the NRA a "needless impediment, which harms and hampers a return to prosperity," Senator H. D. Hatfield, Republican, of West Virginia, yesterday informed Gen. Hugh S. Johnson that "my idea of making NRA a complete success would be to abandon it entirely."

The senator made a brisk attack on the Administration's program in a letter to Gen. Johnson, answering a circular letter that had been written by Johnson to members of the Senate.

"I would not want to continue in office," the senator said, "on the condition that I must bend the knee and render homage to dictates so foreign to our traditional ideas of democracy, personal worth, initiative and freedom of the individual man."

fications of the code the negotiations would end forthwith. They were smiling as they departed, telling newspaper men Johnson would "make whatever announcement was to be made."

Gen. Johnson said he had no letter before him. He refused to say whether it had been withdrawn and denied some of the reported details of the delivery of the ultimatum in the restaurant.

J. D. A. Morrow, head of the Mellon-controlled Pittsburgh Coal Company; James D. Francis, Huntington, W. Va.; Charles O'Neill, New York, and R. E. Taggart, Philadelphia, composed the operators' committee.

The Appalachian group has been antiunion and is opposed to collective bargaining provisions of the recovery law.

Settlement of the dispute was believed to have been reached Wednesday night, when President Roosevelt called NRA, union and operators to the White House. It was disclosed at the White House yesterday the President had proposed objectionable language be left out of the code and wage contracts and the situation met by language incorporated by the President in his approval of the general agreement. The President said that inasmuch as the language would be his own the responsibility would be his and both sides could accept with grace.

Many Objections Made.

The operators found many objectionable features in the code. They opposed features of the fair practice sections, wage bases and differentials, as well as administrative provisions and those for settlement of wage and other disputes. Negotiations still were under way by subcommittees of operators and unions over labor contracts.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, described the coal code as "an achievement in the administration of the national recovery act" which "is truly a tribute to collective bargaining." He pledged all assistance to the United Mine Workers in making the code a success.

In addition to the collective bargaining and other labor principles, on which the Industrial and Labor Advisory Boards have been unable to agree, the NRA is confronted by a battle over price-fixing.

Ford Remains Silent.

Approval of the retail and all other codes containing price fixing provisions should be held up "until the significance of the pricing provisions can be made by a special committee now being formed to consider the subject," the Consumers' Advisory Board said in its second formal statement in two days.

Policy of the board was described as opposed to price fixing except in connection with natural resource industries in which cut-throat competition has affected the public.

At the White House, meanwhile, President Roosevelt received estimates from Cabinet officers that new industrial codes so far in operation affect 13,800,000 employes and approximately 2,000,000 employers.

Babson Sees Fascist Rule For America

Predicts Middle Classes Will Seize Power to Allot Wealth.

Wellesley Hills, Mass., Sept. 8 (U.P.). A Fascist dictatorship for the United States was forecast today by Roger W. Babson, statistician, who predicted the stock market collapse of 1929.

The dictatorship, he said, with the Blue Eagle of the NRA as its symbol, would result from the wrath of the middle classes, aroused by the current conflict over redistribution of wealth.

"It is being crystallized," he said, "by the immediate conflict between capital and labor, between unionism and the open shop. Neither group will be victorious. The middle classes will stand this conflict only for a limited period. Then, due to the depreciated currency and high prices, they will themselves take charge of the situation with a temporary dictatorship. This dictatorship will take the form of a fascism."

Babson spoke at the twentieth annual national business conference here. He pointed significantly to the disbelief which met his forecast of the 1929 panic.

"In 1928 and 1929," he declared, "when my Wall street friends were hailing a 'new era of prosperity,' you know that this Wellesley conference was then looked upon as a hotbed of Jeremiahs. We did not believe in that 'new era' and constantly asserted that it was false and would fail.

New Epoch Opening.

"We feel entirely different, however, regarding the present new era which is set upon redistributing wealth. This is now just beginning. We believe this new goal will determine the program for the next 150 years, although it will soon be found necessary also to redistribute judgment, initiative, industry, courage, and those other rugged traits which made America."

Babson made no attempt to name the dictator.

"I do not worry about Communism, Socialism, capitalism or labor unionism," he said.

Speakers Say It Would Restore Business.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 8 (AP). Restoration of the 2-cent postage rate for first class mail was advocated today by the National Letter Carriers Association in convention. Speakers predicted a return to the old 2-cent rate would increase business.

The convention adopted a resolution urging the Government to permit a carrier to retire at his option after 30 years' service.

Another motion called for repeal of the department order against postal employes smoking while on duty.

Night Trips

New Washington-Atlanta Airplane Passenger Service Starts.

Overnight air passenger service between New York and Atlanta, Ga., with a stop in Washington was announced yesterday in New York by Capt. Thomas B. Doe, president of Eastern Air Transport.

The night flying of passengers will start September 15 as a supplementary service to the New York-Atlanta-Miami daylight service. It will be the first time that the eastern seaboard has had night passenger schedules.

Other cities that will be served by the new service include Newark, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Richmond, Greensboro, Winston Salem and Charlotte, N. C., Spartanburg, S. C., and Greenville, S. C.

The new type of Condor transport will be used. It carries 18 passengers and is equipped with a special insulation to keep the cabin quiet.

Politicians Halt Ferry Project, Littlepage Says

Not Opposed to Plan, But P. S. C. Rules, Ritchie Asserts.

The battle over the proposed new Chesapeake Bay ferry has been carried direct to Gov. Ritchie of Maryland by Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

In a letter to the governor, Mr. Littlepage renewed his charges that a group of Maryland politicians, financially interested in the Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry, is responsible for blocking the proposed Chesapeake Beach-Cooks Point Ferry which would give Washingtonians direct access to the eastern shore of Maryland.

Aided by State, He Says.

After citing how the Claiborne-Annapolis company repeatedly had forestalled the proposed new line, and had been abetted by influential Maryland authorities, Mr. Littlepage declared:

"I mention these incidents because they show the Clairborne-Annapolis Ferry Co. apparently has been able to enlist various departments of the State government of Maryland in its efforts to kill off the new ferry and to retain its enormous profits. I mention them as an illustration of the gross impropriety of the mixture of busines and politics, a wholly vicious prostitution of official and political position for private gain, which has proceeded without let or hindrance from you as the responsible chief executive of the State."

Favors Ferry, Ritchie Says.

Gov. Ritchie told The Washington Post yesterday he resented the implication that because of his former small stock holding in the Claiborne-Annapolis Co. he had taken a hand in the opposition to the new ferry.

"I haven't the faintest opposition to it," he said. "I should be glad to see it established if public convenience will be better served. I want to see the case decided on its merits. I have not interfered with the Public Service Commission of Maryland, and could not because it is a quasi-judicial body."

The governor wrote to Mr. Littlepage late last month to refute "the totally unfair and unjust implication" that as a former stockholder he had been party to the opposition. This letter elicited Mr. Littlepage's renewal of the charges which he had previously laid before the Public Works Administration in applying for a loan to help finance the new ferry.

Storm Toll Up As Rio Grande Rises in Flood

Deaths Reach 24, As Towns Anxiously Watch for Levee Break.

Harlingen, Tex., Sept. 8 (AP).—A moderate rise rolling down the Rio Grande threatened today to inundate lowlands and fill the flood-control system of the surricane-swept lower valley.

Fed by the San Juan River, which carried away torrential rains at Monterrey, Mexico, the Rio Grande rose slowly from Rio Grande City to Hidalgo, 40 miles away, and at Mission the water went into a floodway.

The danger to Brownsville and other cities on the river was a possible levee break.

The river was 4 miles wide at Los Anabos and Penitas and flooded several small Mexican communities on the south side of the international boundary.

The storm-stricken area went about reconstructing homes and buildings and caring for the injured.

The death list in the hurricane rose to 24 today with the finding of 2 additional bodies.

Desperado Abused, Charges Attorney

Harvey Bailey Cruelly Chained, Says Lawyer.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 8 (AP).—Counsel for Harvey Bailey, Southwestern desperado held here for the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, asserted today the prisoner is being subjected to "cruel and inhuman treatment."

James H. Mathers, veteran criminal lawyer, said Bailey is held in a dark cell in solitary confinement, "shackled, handcuffed and both hands and feet chained."

Mathers also said "seven machine guns" are trained on Bailey's cell.

Byrd Declares Blue Eagle Flies Over His Businesses

(Associated Press.)

Asserting Byrd newspapers and all other businesses with which he is connected are flying the NRA Blue Eagle, Senator Harry F. Byrd on his return here yesterday said he was surprised at "reckless statements" in criticism of him by Maj. Henry A. Wise, his Republican opponent.

The Virginia senator came back after a visit to Norfolk, where he attended the postoffice dedication Thursday, at which Postmaster General James A. Farley delivered the dedication address.

The senator issued the following statement:

"On my return to Washington my attention has been called to the statement by Maj. Wise to the effect that my newspapers at Harrisonburg and Winchester do not fly the Blue Eagle. This is false and I am very much surprised that Maj. Wise should indulge in such reckless statements. Long ago I notified the National Recovery Administration of my intention to fly the Blue Eagle and the very day that I received notification of the approval of the newspaper code my papers immediately displayed the Blue Eagle and are obeying the regulations adopted.

"This likewise applies to every other business in which I am connected. It comes with poor grace from Maj. Wise to make this statement in view of his denunciation two weeks ago of the NRA when he said that this meant 'No Republicans Admitted.' He made this speech at Maurertown and his utterance was condemned by Democrats and Republicans alike."

Pollard Plans School Reform

"Just" Division of Costs to Be Provided in Next Budget.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 8. (AP)—Gov. Pollard will seek a "just distribution of the cost of Virginia's public schools between the State and the localities" in the next biennial budget to be adopted by the 1934 General Assembly.

"Each should contribute in proportion to the richness of the sources of revenue assigned to the State and the localities under the constitution and the law," he said.

Defending the State's appropriations, cut as they are, the governor placed much of the responsibility for the school plight upon localities.

"Experience shows that as the State increases appropriations, localities reduce theirs, thus nullifying efforts of the State to provide better schools," he said.

The governor defended tax segregation, and answered arguments that the system is responsible for the inability of localities to meet their needs with the assertion that "the opposite is true."

Prince of Denmark Weds Under Guard

Troops Balk Riots As Knud Marries His Cousin.

Fredenborg, Denmark, Sept. 8 (AP). Prince Knud, 33-year-old younger son of King Christian, and Princess Caroline Mathilde, 21, his cousin, were married tonight at the royal chapel as a strong guard was posted to ward off any demonstrations.

The precautions were taken after street decorations had been torn down during the night, allegedly by Communists. Troops and detectives were detailed throughout the village as nobility arrived to witness the wedding ceremony.

The bride's simple gown, made by her own hands, practically was covered with lace. The princess wore a veil belonging to her great grandmother, Queen Louise. A long train of lace was edged with other lace 1,000 years old given her by the present queen.

There were 60 royal guests, including the Crown Princess and Crown Princesses of Sweden, Norway and Belgium. Others were the Grand Duke and Duchess of Mecklenburg and Prince Huberths of Prussia, the third son of the former German crown prince.

Quality Rules Fairfax Horse And Pony Show

Bright sunshine and a cavalry sergeant's bugle ushered in the annual Fairfax Horse and Pony Show at the Fairfax County Fair grounds yesterday. There were about 500 present as the classes were called, but those present knew their horses; that is, all but the newspapermen. Despite the fact the show has a smaller entry list than most Virginia exhibitions, the quality surpasses that of most shows.

Nesbit, a bay gelding, 16.2 hands high, owned by the dean of Southern horsewomen, Mrs. Allen Potts, of Gordonsville, Va., and ridden by little Eliwood Kieth, 11, of Charlottesville, won the grand championship. And every one was satisfied. Nesbit is some horse. But the judges had one of the hardest jobs of the season picking winners. Everything in the paddock was good enough to win at most shows.

Third Cavalry Wins.

Half a dozen of the ribbons yesterday went to the Third Cavalry Headquarters troop. The Army horses were well trained, good jumpers, in most instances, and well ridden. Capt. Marion Carson got a hand when he rode Wise in the middle and heavyweight hunters class, taking the yellow ribbon. The little horse did a clean job of topping the hurdles and displayed form that would have annexed a blue in many contests.

There were only two casualties during the day. The first came when the police and the sheriff turned off the beer supply and put a padlock on the spigot because the dispenser forgot to get a permit to sell. The other was when a news photographer set a stack of plate holders with specially posed society pictures down alongside a barrier and a horse which refused to jump raised both front feet and set them down on the stack.

Child Takes Honors.

"What a horse—what a horse," moaned the photographer. "Hasn't any bringing up at all—practically no respect for people of good social standing."

It was a treat to see Elliwood Keith ride Nesbit over the jumps and put the big bay through his paces. Like a fly on the jumper's back, the child stuck like glue when the going was rough. Never once did she let the big horse get out of control. There's not many kids in the world 11 years old who can ride a thoroughbred horse straight through the classes of a show to the championship.

Farm Horses Die by Scores

Fungus Disease Epidemic In Southern Area of Maryland.

Maryland farmers yesterday were reported panic-stricken as hundreds of horses continued to die from a malady sweeping the State during the last few days.

Dr. M. F. Welsh, animal disease specialist at the University of Maryland, was dispatched in haste yesterday morning to southern Maryland. He will attempt to find a preventive.

The disease, believed to be carried by a fungus growth on grass in lowland pastures, kills horses within 24 hours after entrance into the system. Veterinarians believe it to be similar to cerebral spinal meningitis.

A similar epidemic swept Prince Georges County several years ago. Officials at the University of Maryland pointed out that the fungus growth, known as "Ergot," is found more extensively after prolonged wet spells.

Annapolis Seeks Restored Navy Pay

City's Plea to President Cites Dependence.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 8 (Spl.) Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt today wrote President Roosevelt asking that the original Navy pay scale for officers, enlisted personnel and civilian employes be restored at Annapolis. The mayor said Annapolis, unlike other communities of an industrial character, is dependent largely upon Federal appropriations. The 15 per cent pay cut, he added, is working great hardship with prices on the upgrade, whereas other cities are being able to reap benefits of the reemployment program.

Bill La Trasse, Reformed Convict, Nabbed Again

Kansas City, Sept. 8 (AP).—Bill La Trasse, who single-handed held up a train between Kansas City and Leavenworth, Kans., on Christmas night, 1910, was arrested today by police, who said they found him holding up a restaurant.

The 52-year-old former convict, who has staged several reformations between trips to prison, said he had been out of work.

Seized Liquor Moved Under Guard of Police

Guarded by two motor loads of Prince Georges County police, 1,000 gallons of seized liquor was removed from Hyattsville to Marlboro yesterday.

Dr. Parkhurst, Reformer, Dies Following Fall

Clergyman, Who Routed Tammany in 1892, Was Walking in Sleep.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 8 (U.P.). Dr. Charles Henry Parkhurst, 91, famous reformer against crime and political corruption, was fatally injured early today when, walking in his sleep, he fell from the roof of his home at Ventnor. He died an hour after the fall.

He first attracted attention when, during a sermon in 1892, he denounced the city administration. He was called upon to prove his charges. He could not, at the moment, but set himself to the task.

Shedding his clerical raiment, he disguised himself as a down-at-the-heel "sport" and, accompanied by a detective, made sortie after sortie into sections where crime flourished.

Slowly he gathered his evidence. Then, having investigated 284 houses of ill repute, and armed with affidavits setting forth conditions, from his pulpit he shouted, "You demanded facts, well, here are the facts. What are you going to do about them. This metropolis of New York City is hell with the lid off."

The shocked community called the Lexow legislative committee. Its hearings lasted many weeks and 700 witnesses testified admitting conditions described by Dr. Parkhurst existed. Minutes of the hearing filled 10,000 pages.

Tammany could not stand up under his withering blasts. "Boss" Croker resigned and at the next election Tammany was put to rout and a reform mayor chosen.

Failure to Answer Bells Hinders NRA Campaign

Failure of residents of Lyon Village to answer their door-bells is interfering with work in the Arlington County NRA drive for consumer's pledges, say campaign solicitors.

Hog Raisers Urged To Heed U. S. Call

Montgomery County pork raisers yesterday were urged to take advantage of the Federal offer to buy 4,000,000 pigs and 1,000,000 brood sows. In a statement issued by O. W. Anderson, county farm agent, he urged the farmers to make application immediately as the offer of a premium will expire when the required number is purchased.

County pigs will be handled through two packing companies at Union Stock Yards at Baltimore. The price to be paid for pigs will be 9 3-4 cents a pound for pigs weighing from 25 to 30 pounds, and one-quarter cent a pound less for each additional 5-pound average weight up to 100 pounds. Brood sows will bring the regular market price plus a premium of $4 per head. Full particulars can be obtained from the county agent's office in the Rockville Courthouse.

Plain Spoken Advertising Proven Best for Business

Psychologists' Survey to Show What Attracts Women Buyers.

Chicago, Sept. 8 (AP).—Ten thousand American women recently told psychologists what kind of advertisements they remembered best, and their answers were reported to the American Psychological Association today.

The psychologists asked questions framed to reveal what ads spur women into actual buying. Prof. S. N. Stevens of Northwestern University, who made the report, said that he believed they had discovered the secret.

Housewives in 40 cities were questioned. Well-known advertising slogans about a food, soap, toilet articles or gasoline were given to each housewife and she was asked what company made the respective articles.

The highest score of correct answers went to a soap slogan, which did not directly mention soap. Sixty-nine per cent named this manufacturer correctly. The worst record was 7 per cent.

One ad which cost $8,000, inserted only once in a single publication, was found six times as effective as another costing $1,000,000 and running for a year.

The ads which drew the high scores in the psychological memory test, Prof. Stevens said, were also those that sold the most goods.

When these most successful ads were analyzed, they were found to be worded in terms of "concrete and well-understood meaning," rather than in "abstract, artificial symbols." They had a definite, vital connection with the habits, interests, emotional patterns and everyday experiences of a large part of the population.

New York Halts Added Tax Plan

Board, Faced by Storm of Protest, Abandons New Levy Increases.

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—Facing a crowd of protesting bankers, brokers, taxicab operators and civic organizations, the board of estimate today suddenly abandoned its plan to raise $40,000,000 in new taxes.

The program, devised by Samuel Untermyer at request of Mayor John P. O'Brien, is designed to aid the city in obtaining bankers loans needed for city government.

Untermyer proposed a 5-cent tax on taxicab rides, a 50 per cent increase in water taxes, emergency taxes on gross incomes of brokers, bankers and agents, utility companies, on the value of investments of savings banks, life and fire insurance companies, and a tax on stock transfers.

The President's Call.

President Roosevelt's appeal to American citizens, communities and States to redouble their efforts in relieving distress is most timely. Although his immediate audience was the group of welfare leaders attending the conference for mobilization for human needs, his greater audience extends to all parts of the country. As the increased distresses of winter approach, no time is to be lost in rallying citizens everywhere to the cause of relief.

The President emphasizes the fact that the Federal Government is unable to finance or perform all relief work. He appeals to States and communities to make every effort to take care of their unemployed and destitute. In exceptional cases, such as the extreme destitution of farmers visited by a grasshopper plague, the Government and the National Red Cross will assume the major burden of relief. But the every-day duty of providing for the hungry and shelterless rests upon the communities concerned.

Unfortunately the tendency to relax in relief work appears when the Federal Government comes in to assist the States. Several States and municipalities have failed to meet their obligations. President Roosevelt referred to them as follows:

> We have had a great many examples of late of areas in this country, areas which have not done their share and are coming, hat in hand, to the Federal Government and saying, "We want Federal relief." There have been States which have not done their share—States where the problems of relief have gotten mixed up with politics; legislatures that are thinking in political and not in human terms. There are municipalities which are going ahead with the spending of the taxes for political purposes and then find they haven't any money left for relief purposes.
> I am glad to say that those individual cases are diminishing in number because the people of this country understand it and are telling the government bodies, local or State, that they have got to play ball and not shirk.

The National, State, and community organizations embraced in the mobilization plans are now entering upon an intensive campaign. No citizen who is free from want himself is exempt from the moral duty of contributing to the relief of his unfortunate fellow-citizens. It is America's suffering ones who must be relieved. The nation that so quickly responds to cries for help from stricken foreign lands is in duty bound to care for its own needy ones.

Dutch Tariff Action.

The withdrawal of the Netherlands from the worldwide tariff truce completed at the London conference has so far resulted in no further reactions among the signatory nations. The United States and seven other governments represented on the conference organizing committee formulated and approved the truce on May 8. Later it was signed by nearly fifty countries, which agreed not to raise tariffs pending results of the London parley.

As no definite action was taken at the conference the understanding was continued in force with the proviso that any nation might withdraw after July 31 by giving a month's notice of its intention to do so. It is under this provision that the Dutch government has signified its desire to terminate its participation in the truce agreement.

In renouncing adherence to the truce it is contended by the Dutch foreign minister that deliberations under the agreement have not aided in the stabilization of monetary relations or lessened restrictions to international trade. Various nations signed the truce only after making reservations as to its effect in their specific cases. Since the close of the conference several countries, notably France, have initiated changes in their tariff and import quota schedules. The action at The Hague, however, is the only case of actual withdrawal from the tariff truce.

The step did not come entirely as a surprise, as the government indicated in July that restrictions on certain imports or increased tariffs might be necessary to protect Dutch commercial interests. Foreign exchange restrictions, particularly Germany's, are held largely responsible for the difficulties of the Dutch position.

Army Loses Miss Liberty.

The Statue of Liberty, which since 1886 has held aloft her flaming torch in New York harbor under the protecting care of the United States Army, has been transferred to the Department of the Interior. After a period of fifty years the circumstances surrounding the gift of this heroic figure from France have become considerably confused, and several erroneous reports have been circulated.

From recent examination of Army records and various unofficial sources of information it is recalled that shortly after the Franco-German War of 1871 a group of prominent Frenchmen proposed a gift to the United States in connection with the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of American independence. The young French sculptor, Frederick August Bartholdi, was sent to the United States to confer with citizens here after it had been decided that the evidence of French friendship should take the form of a monument.

The idea of "Liberty Enlightening the World" came to Bartholdi as he entered New York harbor, and his proposal of a plan to erect upon one of the harbor islands a great torch to greet travelers and remind them that they had arrived at "the land of the free" was accepted. Upon recommendation of President Hayes the executive was authorized to dedicate a site for the monument on Bedloes Island and to accept the monument from France.

About $1,000,000 in popular subscriptions was collected in the United States to provide the great pedestal for the statue. Only the uplifted forearm of Miss Liberty was completed by 1876, but it was sent to the Centennial at Philadelphia. The head was exhibited at the Paris exposition in 1878. The statue was completed in 1883, arriving in New York in 1885, and was assembled and erected by October of the following year, when it was accepted by President Cleveland following a great parade in New York and a water pageant in the harbor.

Are Economic Laws Discredited?

A number of our professional economists lately have discovered that so-called economic laws are not immutable. As they survey the present-day scene, they are apt to shake their heads either sadly or amusedly as they review the theories and axiomatic generalizations of the economic thinkers of the early nineteenth century. They point out that the "laws" of economics formulated in the days when industries were conducted on a small scale, when individuals instead of corporations were in effective control of enterprise and the modern credit system was still in a rudimentary state, are not applicable to present-day conditions.

These critics of the principles of economic individualism, which justified the laissez-faire economic views of an earlier age are, however, prone to exaggerate the extent of the change that has taken place in the public attitude. The leaders of opinion in the nineteenth century did not believe in the infallibility of economic laws. They were well aware that such laws are simply generalizations based on experience, applicable to certain stages and conditions of society and subject at all times to many exceptions. The "New Deal" economic philosophers are not the first to discover that the efficient producer does not always drive out the inefficient one; nor have they a first claim on the knowledge that supply does not always adjust itself to demand for goods under conditions of free competition, without costly delays and losses.

The nineteenth century also understood fully that the growth of large-scale industry and the progressive mechanization of industry creates problems calling for regulatory legislation limiting the free play of competition. As a matter of fact, this country is today chiefly engaged in expanding and amending regulatory systems whose origins antedate the twentieth century. It is not undertaking to experiment with radically different forms of regulation.

It is true, however, that abnormal conditions necessitate a temporary departure from the familiar political and economic practices and policies suited to normal periods. At present the United States is passing through a crisis resulting from world-wide economic maladjustments, but it is a crisis by no means unique in our history, although it is one of exceptional severity and scope.

When the emergency is surmounted, however, the basic economic laws, which are now so discredited in the eyes of certain critics, doubtless will regain prestige because they are common-sense maxims for the most part, based upon a knowledge of the motives that guide men and spur them to action in pursuit of a living. If abnormal times call for a passing departure from the political and economic methods and practices to which we are accustomed, it does not follow that we must embrace an entirely new philosophy of social control. Those working hypotheses, loosely called economic laws, which have provided us with a system of checks and balances of a more or less automatic character, have served us well, despite their imperfections. They have made it possible for individuals to enjoy a large amount of liberty in pursuit of a living, with little interference by the state. There is no convincing evidence to prove that bureaucratic decisions are capable of supplying a less fallible guide for directing the economic activities of modern industrial communities.

The Clark Memorial.

One hundred and fifty-four years after the taking of Vincennes by Gen. George Rogers Clark, the intrepid leader who saved the great Northwest Territory to the young American republic, a handsome memorial has been dedicated to his memory at Vincennes. It is tardy recognition of the great service rendered by this patriot, who was vouchsafed scant recognition while he lived.

The story of Clark's campaigns on the Western frontier to recover the Illinois country, which today comprises not only Illinois, but Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin, is one of the most thrilling in American history. It was in midwinter of 1778 that Clark, having obtained some assistance from Virginia after his successful defense of the new county of Kentucky, started with 170 men to capture Fort Sackville at Vincennes, which had been reinforced by soldiers sent by the British governor, Hamilton, at Detroit.

The march of Clark's frontiersmen through the submerged lands of the Wabash, carrying their powder and scant provisions above their heads as they waded days at a time through icy waters, matches the worst hardships of the Continental armies on the Eastern seaboard. The surprise attack which captured Fort Sackville greatly strengthened Clark's hold upon the Indians. Later he saved the Spanish settlement at St. Louis from British attack, and was instrumental in preventing a disastrous Indian invasion of Kentucky.

It was the daring campaigns of Clark on what was then the Western frontier, when no troops could be spared by Washington, that insured the inclusion of the Northwest Territory as part of the United States when the Treaty of Peace was signed.

District Public Works.

Hopes are now entertained that Director Douglas of the Budget Bureau will soon approve the expenditure of District funds for certain public purposes, including an allotment toward construction of the Calvert Street Bridge. Congress authorized such an allotment, subject to the approval of the Director of the Budget. It is surmised that Mr. Douglas temporarily withheld his approval in the expectation that the necessary funds could be procured from the Public Works Administration, leaving the District fund to be applied to other purposes.

There are other District public works projects, however, which call for the assistance of the Public Works Administration. Notable among these is the Municipal Center, the first section of which would provide for the Police Department and police courts. These accommodations are badly needed. Since the plans for construction are ready and the site obtained, immediate work could be provided for the District unemployed by an allotment of funds.

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission is considering replacement of the Chain Bridge across the Potomac. This ancient structure, recently reinforced, is not too safe, and its approaches are decidedly inconvenient to traffic. Another site, or a relocation upon a higher level, would permit of construction of straighter approaches. The Chain Bridge road may become a link in a national bypass between the North and South, but in any event it is an important highway and should be provided with a new bridge without delay.

It would be difficult for the Public Works Administration to find more advantageous projects than those offered by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

France Walking Warily.

By Robert Dell, in the New Statesman.

French opinion seems to be hesitating and uncertain and, in view of what is going on in Germany, it is surprisingly calm. For years after the victory, French nerves were on edge and there was a constant dread of Germany—a fear that the Germans had not been sufficiently crushed and would one day take their revenge. Now that the fear has been justified and Germany has become a menace not only to France, but to European civilization, French nerves seem quite steady and there is no sign of excitement.

Is this calmness the result of indifference or of failure to understand the gravity of the situation? That seems impossible, for everybody that one meets recognizes the reality of the German danger. The probable explanation is that, in face of a European situation as confused and uncertain as it is perilous, the French feel the necessity of keeping their heads and walking warily.

One reason, no doubt, of the calmness of French opinion is that the powers that be in France now discourage any tendency toward panic. For some time past, there has been hardly any news in the French press about Nazi atrocities or even about what is going on generally in Germany, and there is reason to believe this silence is due to a hint from above. The French government does not desire an anti-German press campaign at the moment, and it would not be difficult to stir one up. From all accounts, French opinion is intensely anti-Nazi, and therefore necessarily anti-German, for nothing but Hitlerism any longer counts in Germany.

In spite of the talk about a Fascism of the left and of the Fascist tendencies of a handful of French Socialists, no country in Europe is at present less likely to go Fascist than France. The conditions in England seem to me more favorable to a Fascist movement, and the political system in England, where Parliament is reduced almost to impotence, is nearer Fascism than that of France, which is still a genuine parliamentary system and, on the whole, works well.

"Most people I have met in France are convinced that, if the present regime in Germany lasts long enough, as there is every probability that it will, war will be forced on Europe when the rulers of Germany believe themselves to be sufficiently strong. If England were ready to join with her army and her fleet in international action to avert the catastrophe, France would no doubt be equally ready.

Something to Worry About.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

THEY'RE AT IT AGAIN.

The depression must be over. The boys are again gesticulating at lunch and making figures all over the restaurant tablecloths with lead pencils.

• • • •

"Yes, sir," said Elmer Twitchell, the old-time restaurant man, today. "the slump is definitely finished. The way the boys are again messing up the tablecloths with the hieroglyphics of commerce and trade is a caution. Every tablecloth removed from a table these days looks like a permanent record of a meeting of the National Association of Rapid Calculators.

• • • •

"And the impressive thing about it is this: The plus signs far outnumber the minus. It's been four years since any of my waiters reported a tablecloth with plus signs on it, and when they first began finding them again a few weeks ago it was like seeing the sunshine after four years in a coal hole.

• • • •

"In the boom years it was a common thing to find every tablecloth in the place covered with calculations like this:

$132,005,625.32
+
$246,132,314.11
$378,137,939.43 x 2
$756,275,878.86

• • • •

"Then came the big bust, and from 1929 until 1933 all we ever found on a tablecloth was an occasional sum in elemental arithmetic, like:

$1.50—$1.45 equals 5c.

• • • •

"But the boys are getting back to problems in 11 figures again and are almost as careless with their decimal points as ever.

• • • •

"Already the laundrymen are very sore and are threatening to boost the rates for doing restaurant linen.

• • • •

"I'm thinking of putting an eraser and sponge at every table and suggesting that the boys remove the figures after they finish calculating."

• • • •

"See that fellow over there?" said Elmer, indicating a man who was talking to himself in a far corner and making curious motions.

"Yes."

"That's one of my waiters. He's gone clean out of his head. That's one of the dangers of the present situation."

"What do you mean?" we asked.

Help the Grand Jury.

Kansas City Times.

If the fight on crime is to be an outstanding success, it must have public cooperation. It is not enough that Federal, State and local authorities be more vigilant and aggressive, be better equipped and have the best possible communication facilities; they must have all the help that can be given by victims of crime and objects of threats, together with information from those who know criminal operations and want to see them stamped out.

Therefore, the call from the foreman of the grand jury, with the consent of the court, for information from all those who can give it, affords an opportunity for public service and imposes a duty that should be discharged.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen.

MY DEAR LOUISE: You have had a number of lucky breaks here of late, and so much good fortune would be enough to turn almost any youngster's head.

I haven't yet seen any symptoms of swell-head, but a word in season is worth many an I-told-you-so, and it is my job to warn you, even if you don't need it.

One afternoon last fall I had two callers. The first was one of the most important men in the State, the other an illiterate Hill-Billy preacher with snuff stains at the corners of his mouth.

The important man graciously removed his hat as he greeted me; the other kept his hat on and affected the manner of an important citizen visiting the slums.

People aren't born with swell-head. It is contrast that makes it. The victim feels important because he has climbed high enough to look down on the place where he was yesterday. And the lower he is at the beginning, the more difference a little climbing makes.

A learned man isn't made conceited by learning a little more. It is the little boy in the third grade or the freshman in college who is swelled to bursting with the extent of his learning.

And the corporal promoted from the ranks feels his importance much more than the general.

I suppose it is the lack of capacity to envision great things that enables people to be conceited about small things. An ant, having no conception of mountains, might boast about climbing a clod. And a rustic who has little understanding of distance might feel superior after a trip to the county seat.

In short, swell-head usually afflicts little people who have done little things that seem big because of their own little capacity.

If a fellow is destined to be President, he doesn't feel big when elected mayor. If the mayor's job makes him feel big, it is because it looks big to a man of his size.

I don't want you to feel inferior. People who feel that way deserve the contempt they get. But I do want you to keep humble.

The finest people are those who never think of inferiority or superiority, but accept all others, high and low, as fellow travelers who deserve courtesy and respect until they demonstrate their unworthiness.

No one of us could feel proud if all of his little secrets were made public. Which means that conceit is a result of having people fooled.

If ever you are tempted to feel important, my dear, compare yourself with people who really are. Love,

DAD.

Foreign Trade Rising.

Boston Transcript.

Statistics of world trade give an unexpected sign of the reality of the present economic recovery. Despite tariff-barriers and the failure of the London conference which was supposed to help clear away such obstructions, the flow of foreign commerce has importantly increased of late both for the United States and Great Britain. American exports and imports during the early months of this year had dwindled alarmingly. In February the exports were $52,000,000 less and in March $46,000,000 less than in the corresponding months of 1932. By May the deficiency had grown smaller, but it was not until June that the 1933 exports actually began run larger than in the same month of a year ago, the total of $120,000,000 as recently reported by the Department of Commerce being $6,000,000 greater than the full amount of American goods sold abroad during June, 1932. The latest figures from the British Board of Trade show a similar rise for Great Britain, and they show it in sums sufficiently large to leave no doubt that overseas commerce, after having turned very pale and thin indeed, is now on the mend.

Attempting a Miracle.

London Evening News.

President Roosevelt, it is stated, has determined to cleanse the United States of its gunmen and gangsters. If it can be done, he will do it. It is a great tribute to his personality that the American people are already looking to him to perform the miracle. We call it a miracle because to destroy the American gangster, as opposed merely to driving him underground for a spell, calls for nothing short of a comprehensive remodeling of the American police and judicial systems.

The Automobile Code.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The automobile manufacturers have finally been permitted to slip into their code a provision authorizing them to "exercise their right to select, retain or advance employes on the basis of individual merit, without regard to their membership or nonmembership in any organization."

Standing alone, this would appear to be a clear antiunion declaration; but it follows a paragraph in which the code reproduces verbatim the collective bargaining guarantees of the NIRA and a specific disclaimer of any attempt "to qualify, or modify, by interpretation," these guarantees. The phrase gives the employers less than the "right to continue the open-shop policy" which they asked in the original draft of their code; but they evidently feel that it gives them something.

Future Growth.

He who doubts the future doubts the past
And beaten is before the struggle starts.
Tomorrow is the field for fighting hearts,
A scene unlighted now but wide and vast
Where men in splendid roles shall soon be cast
And boys today shall rise to noble parts.
Many remember when men rode in carts
And fancied 10 miles to the hour was moving fast.
Tomorrow holds adventure for us all,
Where now we see but dimly skies shall clear.
Nor what discovery mark the coming year,
But from the past this truth we can recall
Growth and achievement mark men's journey here.

Manchester Union.

The United States today is engaged in one of the greatest campaigns ever undertaken by any people. That is the tremendous task of deliberately restoring its own prosperity by setting in motion the normal purchasing power of the Nation.

This experiment, which is altogether new and unprecedented, is based on the fact that the American people are the buyers of 90 per cent of their own products. On this basis it would seem that if we can effect a stimulation of American purchasing power, to that degree the return of prosperity will be assured.

The campaign is now in full swing. Already business has done its part by accepting agreements to shorten hours of labor and increase wages and employment. Now it is up to the consumer to lend a hand, and that means all of us. Success rests upon our cooperation.

Carlisle Bargeron

Bargeron.

CERTAINLY, I am not in a position to know the merits of the present squabble between the administration and the bankers on the subject of looser credits. Whether there is an undue timidity on the bankers' part I don't know. But there have been running through my mind some things which I imagine might make for timidity.

Let's go back to the time, for example, when Mr. Hoover importuned the bankers to liberalize their lending. With a view to supporting them, the Comptroller adopted more lenient regulations to govern them. For one thing, in adjudging a bank's liquidity its securities were appraised at or near their book value rather than their market value at the time.

• • • •

THE administration changed, the banking moratorium came and new and more rigid regulations were adopted. A lot of banks that responded to Mr. Hoover's policy have not been able to open yet under the more rigid requirements.

The bankers may have become apprehensive over Mr. Roosevelt's unusual attack in his inaugural speech. I wondered at the time about the viciousness of it. It was startling to come upon the occasion it did from the new President.

Mr. Roosevelt very probably reasoned that it was necessary to get the confidence of the people. His whole administration so far has been with a view to establishing confidence with the man in the street, to the exclusion of the financial or business world. He has succeeded. Some critics question whether it would not be a good idea for him now to set about cultivating the other side of the fence. Be that as it may.

• • • •

I ASSUME it was in pursuance of the policy of getting the confidence of the rank and file that J. Pierpont Morgan was thrown to the lions. At no time did I hear anyone in authority express the belief that it would be found that Mr. Morgan had been engaged in any wrongdoing that would land him in jail. Nothing was ascertained about the Morgan house, in fact, save what informed people had known all along.

It can't be that the purpose of mobbing him was to get support for the then pending banking bill, as Mr. Roosevelt never showed much interest in the bill.

One is forced to conclude that the administration thought the Morgan investigation would be a wholesome thing for the people at large.

• • • •

TO SAY they enjoyed it is to put it mildly. Never have we had such a good time before. Day after day we laughed until our sides ached. Finally there came the incident of a midget being flopped in Mr. Morgan's lap. The joke was turned around. We decided he must not be so bad, after all.

Mr. Morgan went away pretty much of a hero.

I imagine these series of incidents were causing the bankers to become more timid every day. I don't know that this was the case, but if I were a banker I can understand where such a state of affairs would make me feel as though I was in for it. My tendency would be to make my bank so invulnerable that no hostile influence could hurt it; that regardless of what regulations came, the liquidity of my bank would be beyond touch.

• • • •

COMPTROLLER O'CONNOR has described as "vicious propaganda" the report that small banks were to be eliminated in the deposit-guaranty scheme effective January 1. I don't know just how inclusive he means his statement to be. It has been the general understanding that the administration wants a unified banking system.

There is a general understanding that necessary new banking legislation is coming at the next session. The point is that the banking situation is not in a settled state.

For instance, what must come with the inauguration of the deposit-guaranty law? There will be a showdown on the liquidity of the banks then. Only those that can pass muster will be permitted to come in.

Is it any wonder, then, that every banker may be laying too much emphasis on liquidity these days. It behooves him to be very liquid, indeed.

Repeal Drive Pushed Ahead In Alexandria

Ward Committees to Be Formed Tuesday by Young Democrats.

The Young Democrats of Alexandria will meet in the George Mason Hotel Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock for the purpose of organizing ward committees to work for a heavy vote in favor of repeal of the eighteenth amendment October 3. One of the duties of the committees will be to educate the voters in the use of the ticket, which will be somewhat complicated. In addition to voting on repeal, a choice will be indicated between continuance of State prohibition and liquor control.

In the event liquor control wins, as is freely predicted, a committee of 15, recently selected under authority of the General Assembly, will formulate a report on a control system to be submitted at the regular session of the Legislature in January.

The Young Democrats will also stage a membership drive, which will be in charge of Maurice D. Rosenberg. The Alexandria club had the distinction of being the largest in the State last year.

A report on the State convention held in Richmond recently will be made by President James Reece Duncan.

Nominations By Tuesday.

The time limit for candidates in Alexandria to enter the general election November 7 expired at midnight Thursday night. Only two of the Democratic nominees will have opposition. They are Frederick G. Duvall, nominee for civil and police justice, who will be opposed by Frederick L. Flynn, and J. Fred Birrell, nominee for the State Legislature, opposed by the Rev. Ryland T. Dodge, pastor of the Temple Baptist Church.

The local nominees who are unopposed are Robert H. Cox, city sergeant; Albert V. Bryan, Commonwealth's attorney; Charles H. Callahan, commissioner of revenue, and Roger C. Sullivan, city treasurer.

Units Join Parade.

The Alexandria Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday that, through the efforts of L. H. Dudley, vice president, the cadets of the Alexandria High School, the American Legion drum and bugle corps, and probably the Alexandria Light Infantry, will participate in the parade of the Piedmont Dairy Festival Association, in Manassas, September 30. Miss Jeanette Andrews Michelbach has been selected as princess representing Alexandria.

Beer Back to Owners.

Approximately 20 cases of beer, which were seized in raids by the Alexandria police last June, and the owners of which were acquitted in the corporation court of violations of the prohibition law, will be returned to the owners. This action, according to Commonwealth's Attorney Albert V. Bryan, is to be taken in compliance with a ruling by the attorney general of Virginia.

Improvements Approved.

Final approval was given last night at a special meeting of the city council to the program for street and sewer improvement proposed to be paid for out of the loan of $600,000 from the public works fund of the Federal Government.

Kiwanis Picnic.

The Alexandria Kiwanis Club will give a picnic for members and their families at the summer camp for underprivileged children, in Fairfax County, near Franconia, next Thursday.

Convict to Road Force.

Percy Childs, colored, was convicted yesterday in the Alexandria police court of shoplifting, and sentenced to three months on the State convict road force.

High score in her first duplicate bridge tournament is the achievement of Mrs. Clara S. McCarthy (*), solicitor's office, Veterans' Administration. She won first prize in the September meeting of the round-robin duplicate contract bridge match at Miss Mazie Buie's studio in the Argonne apartments.

Mrs. McCarthy's score was 47½ points out of a possible perfect score of 76. Her accomplishment is noteworthy inasmuch as there were several Washington experts in the play. Miss Helen Freeman and Mrs. Louise Linthicum, also of the solicitor's office, partipated.

Prize Essay Girls Honor Guests Here

Two Who Wrote of Women's Problems Are Feted at Dinner.

"My grandmother would rise from her grave if she could know about my essay which won me this trip," confided 19-year-old Elizabeth Higgins, Middlebury (Vt.) college girl.

"And yet, according to Ellen Key, in her book, 'The Woman's Movement,' the first woman's movement was when Eve reached for the apple from the Tree of Knowledge," rejoined the alert, blue-eyed girl from Illinois.

Both Prize Winners.

The girls were discussing their reaction to being selected prize winners in the equal rights amendment essay contest inaugurated two years ago, on behalf of the National Woman's Party, by the late Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, and lately concluded.

Attention of college women undergraduates through the Nation was focussed by means of the contest on the Woman's Party platform of equal economic rights for women. The two prize-winners admit that they did a tremendous amount of reading, from such authors as Plato, John Stuart Mill, Mary Wollstonecraft and Virginia Woolf before drafting their manuscripts.

Miss Higgins, with a 3,000-word treatise on the subject, "For Those Who Follow After," won first prize of $500 and round trip to Washington; and Miss Smith, for her essay, "In the Footsteps of Eve," was given $200 and a trip to Washington.

Honor Guests at Dinner.

The youg ladies arrived in Washington Friday morning, to be guests of honor last evening at a dinner at Belmont House, when awards were presented them by Mrs. Florence Bayard Hilles, national chairman of the Woman's Party.

Important guests at the dinner were Baron Johan Beck-Friis, charge d'affaires of the Swedish Legation, and Baroness Beck-Friis; Representative Virginia E. Jenckes and her daughter; Representative Louis Ludlow, Mme. Paul Herfort, of Paris; Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Linebarger, Mrs. Merritt O. Chance, Mrs. Nora Blatch Barney, of New York; Mrs. Gerritt Miller, jr.; Mrs. Nina Allender, Mr. Elie Edson, Miss Anita Pollitzer, Miss Adelaide Johnson, the distinguished sculptress; Mrs. Rebekah Greathouse, Dr. Mary O'Malley, Maj. and Mrs. George Oakley Totten, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Daniels and Judge and Mrs. Clyde B. Aitchison.

Swedish Writer Talks.

The keynote address of the evening was given by Mme. Anna Lene Elgstrom, internationally known Swedish author and feminist, who declared:

"Just now women are in danger. In some countries they are quite submerged. In Germany, women are held in tighter bondage than ever. Women must unite to see that what has been won is not lost."

Dean Grace Hays Riley supplemented Mme. Elgstrom's pronouncement by stating that responsibility for ultimate victory of women's struggle for eual rights rests upon the younger generation.

"I say it often, and I say it now," she smiled, "there is nothing that the young women of today can not do—with their clear headedness and sincere earnestness of purpose."

Miss Laura Berrien, who presided at the dinner, and Mrs. Harvey A. Wiley, both emphasized the necessity of equal opportunities for women in the business world.

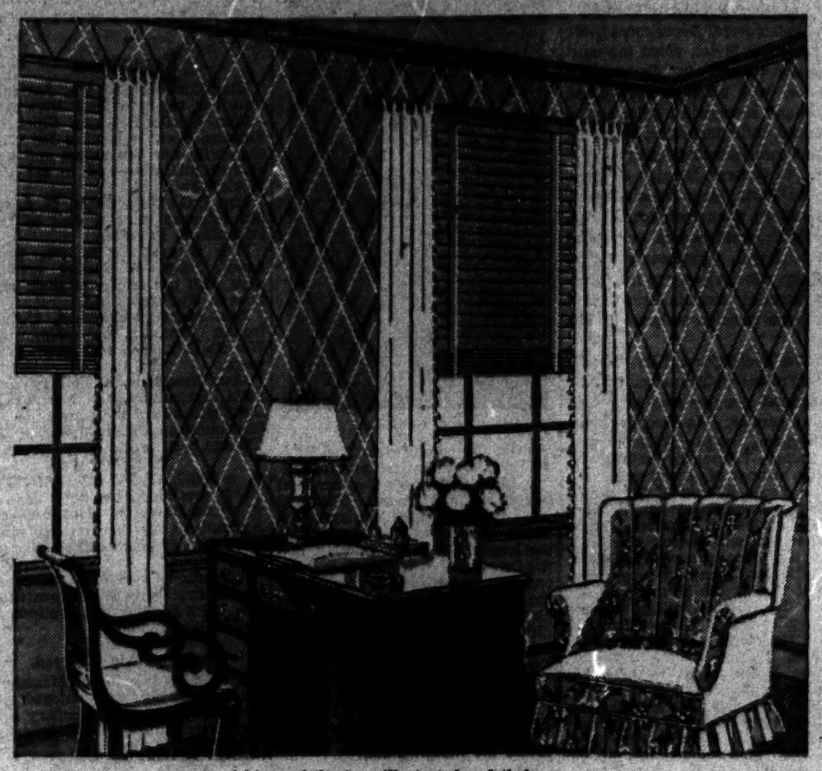
What's in Fashion?

New Wall Papers Gay and Colorful Often Tie Up With Drapery Designs

Directed by Amos Parrish



Information as to where furnishings of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, Washington Post, on request.

It didn't require the enactment of a code to make wall papers get wise to themselves and work with room fabrics—so that they could go together harmoniously. The two have even progressed so far that you can actually find papers and chintzes specially intended for each other.

One wall paper we looked at had a graceful design of draperies caught up by a gold cord and tassel. And its chintz companion had a brilliant blue background as full of huge gold stars as the sky on a Fourth of July night. It all belonged with the eighteenth century pieces most everybody's using today.

Match-Up Idea.

Then another paper was white with red and green sea-horses rollicking over it. A chintz well-contettied with polka dots twinned up with it. Grand for your breakfast room if you don't take your living too solemnly. Also very suitable for a bathroom, fooling you into thinking your tub is parked in an aquarium.

But if you'd rather do your own matching up . . . with a happy flush of pride at your ability to spot something that's just the thing . . . you'll like to dabble among the dozens and dozens of patterns which obligingly hook up with many furniture and drapery fabrics.

Plaids Good.

Plaids make a pleasant background. You usually think of them for colonial or provincial settings. But they work out quite smartly with simple eighteenth century furnishings.

The new diagonal plaid shown in the illustration proves that even walls can have the textured look that's so much touted in fabrics. Another thing—you can see that this plaid would give you a lot of leeway in draperies and upholsteries. They could be highly patterned or perfectly plain and it would still afford a nice contrast.

Whatever you pick, be sure first of all that it works for your room . . . is not too large a pattern for a small room or too insignificant for a big one. You can almost change the size and shape of your room by papering its walls expertly. And you can warm up a cool north exposure room or cool off a too-warm southern room by the judicious use of sunny or cool colors.

Write for Leaflet.

You can do a lot with border papers, too—so much that we've gotten up a special leaflet to tell you a lot of new ideas. It gives the right information on putting border papers on the painted walls of different rooms, and also suggests other clever uses for these inexpensive strips.

Protective Bidding.

I have frequently referred to the ineffectiveness against expert players of the so-called "protective" bidding advocated by a small coterie of alleged experts. Nowhere was the ineffectiveness and, in fact, the tremendous danger of such tactics more clearly demonstrated than in the recent national tournament of the American Bridge League at Asbury Park. Some players have adopted the cult of passing strong hands in first and second position and expecting partners in third or fourth position to "protect their passes" by bidding on practically nothing. These tactics may work against unwary opponents, but they can not be effective in the long run against Bridge players who have cut their eye teeth.

An example of what can easily happen under this system occurred where one of its chief proponents and one of his favorite disciples held the North and South hands.

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

1—The Third Hand "protective" bid.
2—A quite natural response by Mr. Sims, but necessary in any event using this "protective" bidding.
3—Naturally South must bid again as he can not open the bidding and leave his partner in the suit in which he holds a singleton.
4—North must give his partner, who may have a big hand, a "chance."
5—Equally, South feels that North may have passed a big hand and that four spades may be absolutely laid down. The bid of three spades by his partner is absolutely forcing.
6—West has no inhibitions of any kind, and naturally doubles the contract for penalties.

The result of the hand was a set of 2,000 points, and as it occurred in a team match, this one series of bids accounted for elimination of the team of which Messrs. Sims and Unger were members from further competition.

English Drank Tea First Time in 1661

Tea was introduced into England about the year 1661, when Samuel Pepys writes of drinking it for the first time. In 1663 the East Indian Company presented the king with 2 pounds of tea, and in 1666 it was sold in London for 60 shillings a pound. The difference between black and green tea is caused by a difference in the method of drying the leaf.

"Jewel" and "Gem" Are Not the Same

The words "jewel" and "gem" often are used erroneously in conversation.

The term "gem" is applicable strictly to precious stones which have been worked by engraving. When the engraved design is sunk into the stone, the gem becomes an intaglio signet or seal, and when the design is in relief the gem is a cameo.

As a rule, such costly stones as diamonds, emeralds, sapphires and rubies are seldom treated by engraving and properly are termed "jewels." Their value depends principally upon their brilliant color and sparkle and their hard substance renders them unfit material for the engraver's art.

The best-known "gems" are carnelian, sard, bloodstone, jaspor, agate and onyx. The distinction between the present-day gems and those of earlier times lies in the fact that modern gems are the products of manufacturing, or machine engraving, while gems of past centuries were engraved by hand.

French Food Shop Haven To Shoppers

Old World Atmosphere and Low Prices, Fine Meals Are Attractive.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

Covering Connecticut avenue on a shopping tour is likely to take several hours, the time spent tramping in and out of shops, up and down the hard sidewalks, might dampen the spirit of the most inveterate shopper. The minute you feel yourself becoming tense, gross and uninspired by bargains call a halt and have your luncheon.

After seeing and trying on the Parisian models you undoubtedly encountered, what could be more appropriate than a French restaurant? You'll find one only a few blocks above Dupont Circle that not only has the true French atmosphere and a French menu, but real French cooking. The low ornate ceiling with its cut glass chandelier, heavy oak paneled walls, with shelves of wine and liqueur bottles will cause you to wonder if it isn't the Montmartre you have just left, and not Connecticut avenue.

If you stop in for a casual snack, why not try l'escargots a la Bourguignone, ½ dozen, 25 cents, or canapes de pate de foie gras, 50 cents. The table d'hote dinner includes such things as soupe a l'aignon, biftek marengo, gigot roti, haricots soissons, jardiniere de legumes, and a number of others.

On the other hand, if you prefer something in the American style, stop by a food shop only a block or so from the circle. The chances are your pocketbook will be feeling the shopping strain. Here you can find a well-prepared luncheon for 25 cents. For instance: Codfish cakes with tomato sauce, or chicken croquettes, potatoes and lima beans, or cold roast leg of lamb, or red salmon, lima bean salad with tomatoes. With this you have cornbread or rolls and a choice of beverages.

If your shopping has taken you until late afternoon, stop by for dinner. A mere 85 cents will take care of you with clam chowder, Boston style; fruit cup or tomato cocktail; creamed oysters on toast or veal cutlet breaded; broiled potatoes and a choice of two fresh vegetables; coffee, tea, or milk.

By the late afternoon you are likely to feel like going home. Don't worry about dinner. Just stop in here and take home a half dozen fried oysters, cole slaw and French fried potatoes, 40 cents; or baked chicken, sugar cured ham, or roast beef.

After the theater or the dance, if you feel like a midnight supper, you will enjoy the jovial atmosphere of this food shoppe, where you will be likely to meet any number of your friends.

A pretzel is just a pretzel to some dealers, but not to this one in a Fourteenth street market. He sells three kinds, and can tell you the history back of them. The regular old-fashioned beer pretzel, hand made, sells for 25 cents a pound. This particular variety contains no butter and is very dry and crisp

The butter pretzels are not so large, but a bit tastier. These come in two sizes, medium thin, which sells for 30 cents a pound, or very thin, for 35 cents.

A slight variation from either of these is offered by the pretzel cheese sticks which look like untwisted pretzels, and taste like them, too, except for a delicate cheese flavor. You can buy these baked very brown, or not so brown, for 35 cents a pound.

The poor old fellow had worked late and was tired and hungry. He dared not go home in such a bad humor, for his wife would be sure to say provoking things to him and he would be forced to answer back. Whenever he did that she always gave him such a tongue lashing it took him several weeks to recover. So here's what he did. He stopped by a Fourteenth street bakery and tried one of their five-course dinners for 39 cents. And here's what he got: Choice of soup or cocktail, choice of meats, two vegetables, hot biscuits, beverage and dessert.

To placate his wife he decided to take her a cake. He wanted a cake for breakfast, so he selected one with sliced apples and apricot sauce across the top. At first he couldn't decide whether to buy this or another, with sliced peaches, but he thought he'd try one today and the other tomorrow. They're very reasonably priced and delicious for breakfast or tea.

A store on Fourteenth street has some marmalades which were made in Florida from the fresh fruits. You might have thought you liked orange, grapefruit and tangerine marmalade, but you'll be thoroughly convinced after you've tasted these. You can also buy orange syrup for 25 cents a bottle. This is excellent with ice cream, waffles or hot biscuits.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of the Woman's Department of The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 105, for further information. Or write, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

Sandwich Is Fatal.

Chicago.—Alice McBride died after eating a sandwich she prepared and in which she accidentally put bits of glass from a broken jar.

A Pie to Please the Palate

Veal and Ham Combined in Meat Loaf That Is Easy to Prepare.

If you are at a loss as to the meat course for tomorrow's supper, here is a loaf that can be prepared the day before, put in the ice box and forgotten until meal time. It is as pleasing to the eye as to the palate. Veal and ham pie recipe:

Slice 3 pounds of veal about 4 inches square and 2 pounds of fat raw ham. Line a pie mold with paste, fill with layers of veal and ham and a little chopped onion, chopped parsley and pepper. When mold is half full, put a line of hard-boiled eggs in the center, end to end. Then finish, filling the mold to the top and covering with the same paste. Decorate with fancy cutters and bake in a moderate oven for two hours at least.

With the trimmings of veal or any bones, make a little jelly, using gelatine to set it. Pour this jelly in the pie, the jelly being nearly cold, but not set. When doing this, the pie must be thoroughly cold. Put the pie in the ice box and use the next day.

The paste for the pie consists of 2 pounds of flour, ½ pound of butter or lard, ½ ounce of salt, 2 eggs and a little water.

Good Corned Beef Hash Wins Fashion's Approval

By Ann Barrett.

The way corned beef and potatoes are meeting up in the frying pan these days, in nice brown hash, makes good news for a lot of people. For Automobile Man Walter Chrysler. For psychologist Dr. Edward L. Thorndike. And even for such social high lights as the Princess Paul Chavchavadze, who serves it at New York parties.

Good corned-beef hash, that is. Out of a can (there are several excellent brands) or made at home. But anyway with the ingredients chopped (grinding makes them mushy). With the meat outbulking the potato about 2 to 1. And (for most people) plenty of nice brown crust top and bottom.

To Cook Corned Beef.

In case you want to cook your own corned beef first (say for a boiled dinner with vegetables) here's how to do it. Get a 3 or 4 pound piece of corned beef, rump or boneless brisket. Soak it overnight in cold water. Then half cover it with boiling water, put into the kettle with it a bay leaf, 6 whole peppercorns and 2 small onions. Bring to a boil, then reduce heat and simmer gently till tender (2 to 3 hours). The meat will be juicier if you let it cool in its own liquor (provided this is not too salty).

Knacks of Making.

After you've mixed your hash (say 2 cups chopped meat to 1 cup chopped potato) then comes the matter of seasoning. You probably won't need any salt, but taste and see. You'll need a dash of pepper. And 1½ tablespoons grated onion, if you like onion. Two tablespoons of chopepd green pepper is a nice addition, if you like it. Or 3 tablespoons chopped mushrooms. It's a New England trick to mix in as much chopped, cooked beet as you have potato—in this recipe, 1 cup.

Hash should not be too dry. I can't tell you exactly how much moistening to add, because this depends on the kind of meat and potato you've used. But to hold my hash together nicely so I can turn it and brown it on both sides I sometimes add as much as half cup milk or stock. Use about 2 tablespoons fat for frying this amount of hash, press the hash down well onto the pan, then cook it without stirring. If you bake your hash in a shallow greased pan (about 30 minutes at 350 F.) it will brown nicely, too.

Beet Relish.

Over and above this, I'd like to remind you that a good, tart relish is to corned-beef hash what cheese is to apple pie. And of all relishes, tradition hands the palm to beet relish for bringing out the best that's in corned-beef hash. Here's an easy way to make it: Just mix 3 cups chopped, cooked beets (buying them canned saves time), ¼ cup grated horse-radish, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, ¾ cup vinegar. Let stand till flavors ripen.

Send for Apple Pie Recipes.

Speaking of apple pie reminds me I have a brand-new bulletin on how to bake the kind of apple pie that makes cooks famous. This bulletin also gives recipes for apple kuchen and apple cakes. An earlier bulletin that has proved popular tells how to make other apple desserts, including various ways to bake apples. Mark which you want. Send 6 cents in loose stamps for each; 12 cents if you want both.

Best Not to Eat When Fatigued

Nervous State Quickly Reflected in Stomach.

"Laugh and grow fat," is a wise saying. The general nervous state of any person is quickly reflected in the stomach.

Excitement, worry, anger, chill, fatigue, all tend to retard digestive processes. The greatest skill in the choice of easily digested food may be of no avail while such unfavorable states persist.

If food must be taken under such conditions, it is best sipped in some warm, rather diluted form, such as soup, cocoa, malted milk, gruel or a raw egg beaten up in milk. Next best for the excited, fatigued or otherwise ailing person is very dry food which has to be moistened and softened in the mouth, and reaches the stomach nearly fluid. Crisp toast and finely minced, lightly cooked lean meat is suggested.

Cheese, candy, nuts and strongly acid fruits should be avoided until such conditions pass, as they are apt to prove irritating to a sensitive stomach.

Breakfast Today Is Simple Matter

The ease with which the modern housewife prepares and serves her breakfast foods offers a sharp contrast to the antiquated methods used some years ago. Formerly breakfast foods were soaked overnight, then cooked for hours on wood stoves or over open fires. Now the housewife may choose from a variety of cooked cereals that can be prepared in a few minutes and from dry cereals that may be served directly from the containers. Instead of open boxes and unsanitary containers that were once used, foods are delivered in sealed boxes. Modern manufacturers guarantee pure food and easy preparation.

Cherry Tarts.

1½ cups flour
¼ cup lard
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons cold water

Mix flour and salt. Cut in the lard with knife; mixing with knife, add water. Divide dough into 8 pieces and roll out each piece and fit into deep muffin pans. Prick sides and bottoms with fork. Bake 10 minutes in moderate oven. Remove shells from pans and add cherry filling.

Cherry Filling.

2 cups seeded cherries
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup water
2 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

Blend cherries, sugar, flour and salt. Add rest of ingredients and cook slowly 10 minutes. Cool and serve poured in little pastry cups.

Health Care, Good Looks, Go Together

Enemies From Within Are More Deadly Than Those Outside.

Woman's beauty has two kinds of enemies, those that attack from without and those attacking from within.

In the first category come harsh winds, burning sun, a dust-filled atmosphere and negligence in properly cleaning the skin at least once each 24 hours. Enemies from within undermine bodily health and have their source in improper diet, improper elimination, inadequate intake of liquids, lack of rest and lack of sleep.

Goes on for Years.

Subtle and difficult to subdue, are those enemies of beauty which work from within! Diet faults are practised for years, with the defaulter only half aware of her shortcoming and totally unaware of the insidious damage to looks she is tolerating. The circulatory system functions far below par, because of lack of exercise.

Gradually the internal lack of coordination advertises itself through dull and blotchy skin, yellowed eyeballs, sagging shoulders, a chronic tiredness, possibly through a nervous temper and loss of mental and physical efficiency.

Seek Doctor's Advice.

No drastic changes in diet are to be undertaken without a doctor's advice and when a woman finds herself steadily losing "tone" in both looks and a feeling of fitness, her first move should be consultation with a physician.

It is safe to say, however, that nearly every one eats too little vitamin-producing foods, such as green vegetables and fruits, whether raw or cooked. All of us could drink more water every day to advantage.

Back Stage.

By Katherine W. Smith.

Though I have no inspiration
For a poem in my mind,
I will run a sheet of paper
In my Underwood and grind

Out some rhyming words and phrases
That will be, I must confess,
Of very little value
To the reader. Well, I guess

That three stanzas will be plenty,
So I'll find another rhyme
And take out my sheet of paper.
Hope there's better luck next time!

Peanut Butter Recipe Wins Week's Prize

Mary Zea Sonner Provides Tempting Suggestion for Use of Humble Nut.

The wholesome and tasty food properties of the humble peanut, or "ground nut," as it is called south of the Mason and Dixon line, are becoming more and more recognized in the preparation of inexpensive menus.

The housewife who includes peanut butter in her essentials for the food of the week will do well, especially if she has children who welcome it as a food relish as well as a staple article of their diet.

The weekly prize of $5 this week goes to Miss Mary Zea Sonner, 638 Maryland avenue northeast, whose recipe for peanut butter pie sounds very tempting.

Miss Sonner's recipe:

Four tablespoons flour, 1¼ cups scalded milk, 3 tablespoons peanut butter, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 egg yolks.

Mix sugar, salt and flour together, then add slightly beaten yolks. Pour over this mixture the scalded milk. Cook until it thickens, stirring constantly, and cook five minutes more, stirring occasionally. Add peanut butter and cool. Put in a baked crust. Top with meringue. Use the whites of eggs for the meringue.

The Family Marketer

Radishes Have a Comeback and Spinach Is Cheap and Plentiful.

The radishes, which have been looking so glum the past few days, are ruddier and more fiery than ever. Like the sunflower, which follows the course of the sun with its head and droops so disconsolately during cloudy weather, the radishes have a way of fading to a dull red and losing their pep during rainy days.

However, they are decidedly perky on the market today. Their healthy blush perhaps bespeaks a pride that in two days time they have risen from the ignominy of 5 cents a bunch to 10 cents. You'll find them extremely decorative as a side dish and decidedly spicy in a salad.

Spinach High.

Spinach continues to be more plentiful than usual and higher, too. A new crop is on the verge of coming in, so the little bit on the market now is young and tender, and priced beyond the usual rate. One pound is 25 cents. Even if your family objects to its taste, they might be somewhat reconciled if you prepare it carefully and garnish it with slices of hardboiled eggs. Spinach, like a number of people, must be attractively dressed to be appealing.

Because the season for raspberries is just about over, you have to pay more than usual for them. However, their quality warrants the price. Although they're a bit smaller than they were some time ago, what they have lost in size they make up for in flavor. If breakfast is a difficult meal at your house, try tempting the family with a bowl of raspberries, served with sugar and cream.

Honey Balls.

Breakfast shouldn't be such an ordeal, though. The market is offering various and sundry tempters. The California honey balls are here in all their glory. They're mellow looking enough to warrant eating them just so, skins and all, but don't try it. Slice them and revel in the savory, flavory flesh. If you're inclined to feel cross in the mornings, start the day with a honey ball and watch your disposition improve, if you don't happen to mind the 25 cents you have to pay for each.

A great many people feel that nothing can take the place of a sweet, pulpy grapefruit at the breakfast table. Connoisseurs in this line of semitropical fruit will be glad to hear that there are many Cuban grapefruit on the market now. And housewives will be glad to hear that they're only 10 cents a piece.

Here's How—

One way of making them particularly delicious is to fix them the night before, covering them with a layer of sugar which melts into the fruit during the night.

If you're from the South, or even if you're not, but just happen to have acquired a Southern taste, you'll be more than likely to enjoy some of the fresh greens cooked with a bit of salt pork.

For instance, mustard greens—they might offer some variation. You can buy them at 10 cents a pound, and the fat, 12 cents a pound.

If not mustard greens, why not Savoy cabbage? It's curly leaves look as tender as they are, and it's only 8 cents a pound. The hard white cabbage is the one and only for slaw, but the Savoy is the very best for boiling and serving just so.

You should, in consideration of the price, make this a beef day. Chuck roasts which can be used for pot roasts or oven roasts are as low as 15 cents a pound.

Polka Dots Smart On Plain Dresses

Belts, bows and neckties of polka dots are decidedly smart when worn with plain crepe sports dresses, as fashionable congregated at Southampton have demonstrated. From Newport comes the idea of wearing a fingertip jacket of print over a plain-colored dress. A shirtidea, too. Scarfs are worn at both resorts in the "sore throat" manner, bunched up under the chin. White shoes are decidedly the things, especially the sturdy four-eyelet oxford with huge perforations.

Charm Still Holds.

Greensburg, Pa. (AP).—Michael Pawlek thinks he has discovered the secret of why his tomatoes and his potatoes and his squashes have flourished this summer. In his truck patch he found a cucumber shaped like a horseshoe.

Screen and Stage Bills for New Week as Viewed and Reviewed by Critics

Mystery Play And Old-Time Stars at Fox

Novel Photoplay at Earle; Barrymore at Keith's; Other Bills.

"PENTHOUSE." — Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the novel by Arthur Somers Roche, featuring Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy, with Mae Clarke, Charles Butterworth, Nat Pendleton, Phillips Holmes, C. Henry Gordon and Martha Sleeper. Directed by W. S. Van Dyke. Reviewed Friday morning.

Anyone reading Arthur Somers Roche's distinctly metropolitan murder mystery, "Penthouse," could not but have been impressed by the fact that the author evidently had penned his hectic fable of gangsters, chorus girls, speakeasies and Park avenue with one sagacious eye cocked at the motion picture screen.

Barring an occasional verbosity, "Penthouse," in the sequence and timing of its incident, the movement of its characters and the convenient shifts of its midcity locales, in its original form already was a first rate scenario.

It is not surprising then that "Penthouse" on the screen should follow the development of the novel with far greater fidelity and to far greater dramatic effect than is usually the case in the translation of popular fiction into film footage. For once, there can be no quarrel between the reader and the theatergoer. The story is identical between the covers of a book and the shutters of a camera.

A Pretty Good Story.

And it is a pretty good story, as such things go. Now and again, it may exert a slight strain upon the credulity, but when was relentless logic ever an essential component of drama of love, violence and the underworld?

A brilliant young attorney is jilted by his fiancee for having lowered his standard of ethics to the point of winning acquittal for a gangster accused of murder. That same evening this same brilliant young attorney is called upon to defend his rival against the charge of having murdered a former inamorata at a gay penthouse party. Developments become a trifle involved after that, but interest is never permitted to lag and climacteric events never become so pressing as to force the abandonment of a deft vein of comedy that is woven throughout the warp and woof of the play. The final climax is characterized by a genuine crescendo of action that reaches the peak of melodramatic intensity in a scene of cleverly compounded excitement.

Baxter the Star.

Both by right of his character's prominence in the major episodes of the story and the perfection of his performance of it, Warner Baxter is the star of the picture. His Jackson Durant, playboy, barrister and shrewd deductionist, is a well-drawn and believable figure, although a little more given to heroics than Mr. Baxter's customary character creations. Opposite him, Myrna Loy, as the "straight" girl of the night clubs, does an honest enough bit of portraiture, in so far as intent is concerned, but impresses this observer as miscast from the viewpoint of the author's description of the girl. Mae Clarke, in the brief role of the murdered girl, and Miss Loy, might have exchanged places with some advantage to the maintenance of the novel's original color.

Opposing figures of the underworld are flawlessly played by C. Henry Gordon and Nat Pendleton, both veterans who know their way around in any sort of "he-man" assignment. To Charles Butterworth is allotted much, but not all, of the comedy of the piece. Among others who contribute to an ensemble of notable balance are Phillips Holmes, Robert Emmett O'Connor, Raymond Hatton and Arthur Belasco.

Down "Memory Lane."

Seldom has any act purporting to revive the past glories of a group of old-time stage favorites so completely and disarmingly fulfilled its intended function as Joe Laurie, jr.'s, "Memory Lane" revue, headlining the current Fox stage show. Here are a little band of artists ranging from 60 to 89 years of age, who retain an amazing degree of the talent, the spontaneity and that intangible quality of audience appeal that made them leaders of an earlier day in the theater.

The list is too long to permit individual appraisal, but not a person on the stage but offers his or her share of genuine entertainment—Emma Francis, Dave Genaro, originator of the cake walk; Annie Hart, William C. Handy, composer of the "St. Louis Blues;" Gus Hill, Lizzie Wilson, Bill Swann, Harry Brooks, Tommy Harris, J. Rosamond Johnson; all the boys and girls rate an orchid, a round of applause and a handclasp for old times' sake. Joe Laurie is entitled to a warm measure of public gratitude for having brought them all back to us once more.

Other Stage Acts.

Paul Tilsen and his orchestra, assisted by Jack Holland and June and Maria George in an interval of melody and dance; Ray Hulin and a trained seal of uncanny precocity, and Harry Ross and Eddie Edwards in songs and banter, complete the stage portion of the program.

The Fox Movietone News rounds out a bill that forecasts a week of standing-room popularity.

Here in a Congenial Role

With his sterling performances in "Rasputin" and "The Stranger's Return" still fresh in memory, Capital picturegoers eagerly welcome coming of Lionel Barrymore to RKO-Keith's this week in "One Man's Journey," second offering of the "Greater Show Season" and one of the "Best of the Month" selections for September.

"BUREAU OF MISSING PERSONS."—First National picturization of a story by Robert Presnell, featuring Bette Davis, Lewis S. Stone, Pat O'Brien, Glenda Farrell and Allen Jenkins, with Ruth Donnelly, Alan Dinehart and Hugh Herbert. Directed by Roy Del Ruth. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

Revealing with seeming authenticity and fair accuracy the tragedy, the heartache, the humor and the valuable public service that center in the operation of a metropolitan police department's agency for restoring lost or hidden identities, "The Bureau of Missing Persons" provides a quality of entertainment that bears the distinct stamp of novelty.

The central thread of narrative may be spun a little fine and there may be something less than perfect continuity in the exposition of the picture's varied developments, but, in the main, there is the zestful tang of the unusual in all that goes on on the screen.

Just as in the opening sequences of "Mayor of Hell" First National succeeded in etching with cameo sharpness and clarity a cross-section of typical urban life in the juvenile court scenes, so in "The Bureau of Missing Persons" has it managed to bring something of the unknown side of city life out into the open for minute examination. The result is interesting, sad and gay, by turns, and at times genuinely exciting.

Drama of Wide Scope.

There is, of course, in a drama of this nature a vast latitude for the depiction and pointing of character. This is a major factor in the play's claim to attention that has been taken full advantage of by the producers. A melodrama that enlists the services of so notable a group of players as Lewis S. Stone, Bette Davis, Glenda Farrell, Pat O'Brien, Allen Jenkins, Ruth Donnelly, Hugh Herbert, Alan Dinehart, Marjorie Gateson and scores more of only slightly less importance, and affords each an adequate outlet for his distinctive gifts of vocal and pantomimic expression, must, of necessity, be a work of some fiber and scope. Such a play is the present—a panorama of big city confusion, deception, duplicity and turmoil, viewed from an angle new to the layman.

The particular bit of romance with which "The Bureau" principally concerns itself pertains to a young woman, attempting to evade a charge of murder until she can accumulate proof of her innocence, her accusers and her protectors. It is in this especial combination of circumstances and events that Lewis S. Stone, as the police captain in charge; Bette Davis, a trifle too breathless and staccato as the girl, and Pat O'Brien and Glenda Farrell are involved. It is for this reason that they seem head and shoulders above the rest in the cast, none of whom, incidentally, may be charged with mediocrity.

It is an adventure on the city's seamy side that is well worth the time and trouble, this "Bureau of Missing Persons," a little harrowing at certain mortuary moments, but never dull.

The Stage Acts.

On the stage, Gracie Barrie, in her second week as mistress of ceremonies, introduces the American Lucky Boys, a band of six mad gymnasts; Edgar Bergen, his feminine assistant and that priceless dummy in the best ventriloquial act on the boards; the Colby-Murry Dance Revue, her own "torch" songs and ballads and Cliff "Ukulele Ike" Edwards playing hooky from the studios long enough to twang his uke and sing his ribald ditties as headliner of the bill.

All these were received with every sign of enthusiastic approval yesterday afternoon, although there were moments during their collective pastiming that fell something short of sheer inspiration.

A Grantland Rice "Sportlight" devoted to "Water Lure," a "Merrie Melodie" cartoon comedy, "The Dish Ran Away with the Spoon"—one of the cleverest of the series; Mr. McNamee's impetuous interpretations of the news events, and Freddie Clark's musicianly rendition of the "Raymond" overture augment a feature and vaudeville bill of better than average merit.

RKO-Keith's

"ONE MAN'S JOURNEY."—RKO-Radio picturization of the story "Failure," by Katharine Haviland-Taylor, starring Lionel Barrymore, with May Robson, Dorothy Jordan, Joel McCrea and David Landeau. Directed by John Robertson. Reviewed Friday morning.

Not the ranting, blustering Lionel Barrymore of "A Free Soul," nor even the Mephistophelean Mr. Barrymore of "Rasputin and the Empress," but rather a Mr. Barrymore calmer and more repressed (if not actually frustrated) is presented in "One Man's Journey," the story of a country doctor whose own hopes and aspirations are submerged under the more immediate needs of a suffering humanity.

In "One Man's Journey" the story is of little importance, although it is a thoughtful, well-constructed one; but rather is it the character of Dr. Eli Watt, the Aesculapian godfather to the countryside, that transcends all other considerations.

Lost Practice.

Here is a medical man who has lost his practice through the inability to save his own wife's life at childbirth and who returns to his home town to start anew. His first case is a replication of his own experience, but practice does come in during the following years of struggle, with reimbursement largely in trade rather than cash. During a smallpox epidemic, Dr. Watt becomes "rediscovered" as the result of his efforts and, later, astounds specialists by a remarkable "cure." But throughout, Dr. Watt is decidedly human and possessing that characteristic which specialists so frequently forget—that patients are human beings and treatment as such often effects results where medication fails.

Wrapped so completely in his own work and in the career of his son and the girl he brought into the world and raised as his own, the good doctor was too concerned with his flock to accept plaudits of specialists.

It is difficult adequately to appraise this picture, for it is a stern, homely drama with only an occasional moment of levity; it is an indictment, somewhat mildly proposed, of too specialized specialists; a flawlessly enacted story of truly epic proportions.

In support of Mr. Barrymore's dominant delineation of Dr. Watt are May Robson, as the housekeeper who finally and literally drags the good doctor off to Niagara Falls (for the usual reason!); Dorothy Jordan, as the semifoster-daughter of the doctor; Joel McCrea, as the son; Buster Phelps, as the son at the age of 6; David Landau, as the father who for a time refuses to keep his daughter, and Sam Hinds and Hale Hamilton, as specialists called for consultation.

An issue of Pathe News, "The Bully's End," an Aesop Fable, and "Quiet, Please," a comedy featuring Edgar Kennedy, complete the second bill of the RKO "Greater Show Season."

Palace

"THE MASQUERADER."—United Artists picturization of the play by John Hunter Booth, based on Katharine Cecil Thurston's novel, starring Ronald Colman, with Elissa Landi, Juliette Compton, Halliwell Hobbes, David Torrence and Helen Jerome Eddy. Directed by Richard Wallace. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

After a prolonged and much regretted absence from the American screen, Ronald Colman returns to do some of the most perfectly polished work of his career in that perennial favorite, "The Masquerader."

Those who remember the dramatization of Katherine Cecil Thurston's famous novel, with Guy Bates Post in the title role, or the screen version of the old "silent" days, also with Mr. Post, will find that the modern adaptation has lost nothing of its original charm, but has rather gained an added brilliancy and distinction.

Ronald Colman contrives to make his characterization, which could very easily have been overdrawn and theatrical, a well-balanced, cleverly portrayed dual-personality. As John Chilcote, who finds the demands of public opinion an insatiable thing that insists upon the sacrifice of all his energies, he is the epitome of degenerated brilliancy. As John Loder, he plays a charming, diffident Englishman as only a charming, diffident, but very-sure-of-himself Englishman could play it.

Supporting Cast.

Elissa Landi is Eva Chilcote, the unsuspecting wife, who watches the transformation of her nerve-driven, bitter husband into a clean-cut young national leader. At times Miss Landi photographs beautifully, but her performance never quite reaches Mr. Colman's finished perfection. Juliette Compton, as Lady Joyce, the "other woman" in the life of John Chilcote, is adequate as a well-bred menace to anyone's domestic happiness; Halliwell Hobbes as Brock, the faithful servitor, gives a splendid performance.

Two old favorites of the silent screen have bits in the picture and do them exceptionally well. Helen Jerone Eddy plays Robbins, a Cockney maid. Creighton Hale appears as Lakely, secretary to the temperamental Chilcote.

Auxiliaries.

The remainder of the bill is enlivened by one of Walt Disney's clever "Silly Symphonys." "Lullaby Lane" comes to us in Technicolor, sound effects and all the amusing Disney innovations.

Other added attractions include "Happy Warriors," a novelty attraction with snappy interpolations and explanatory remarks by Pete Smith; "Beer and Pretzels," a short musical extravaganza, and the Metrotone News, containing the usual quota of interesting world events.

Columbia

"SONG OF SONGS." — Paramount's picturization of the Hermann Sudermann classic, starring Marlene Dietrich, supported by Brian Aherne, Lionel Atwill and Alison Skipworth. Directed by Rouben Mamoulian. Reviewed, return engagement, Friday evening.

There is a great deal of beauty in "Song of Songs," beauty of photography and of Frau Marlene, who comes to rather vivid life, her face warming from its usual, slow, lovely vacancy into mobility and hint of her "thousand moods." But there is very little of the truth of drama; instead rather too much lush romance, just a little silly, or superfluous, or perhaps merely dated.

It is the old, old story of Lily, the innocent little country girl, and the struggling young artist, who turns her over to his rich, old patron (a veritable ogre in his dim, medieval castle), for "her own good" and his, and then wants her back.

The subsidiaries concluding the bill are an exciting film about horses—wild, racing and cavalry—a Harry Langdon-Vernon Dent comedy, "Hooks and Jabs," and the newsreel.

Radio Waves and Ripples

NATIONAL'S Washington station, WRC, will help Atlanta's WSP celebrate a power increase tonight at 10.

The voices—speaking and singing—of Ben Bernie, Vincent Lopez, Gene and Glenn and the Revelers will be familiar.

WRC's program directors expect the Pickens sisters, Billy Jones and Ernie Hare to be well received.

WOL's president, Leroy Mark, believes the passing of another week will see his station on Ed Wynn's Amalgamated Broadcasting chain.

The joining process has been a long one. Conferences, testing, and more conferences have made it so. Some more testing is to be done tomorrow. But this time WOL managers have scheduled the broadcast, foreseeing the end of the station's dependence on local talent.

New programs from New York will open and close with advertising for not more than a minute.

PRESIDENT and MRS. ROOSEVELT will be on a Columbia network in a March of Time program this fall.

But only by proxy. They are to be impersonated by William Adams and Marion Hopkinson.

Adams had the home folks guessing during the last Presidential campaign. Some wrote the studios to learn if recordings of Roosevelt speeches were not being made. Others came up with that sporting offer that begins, "I betcha * * *"

BOB TROUT, WJSV's presidential announcer, called his boss, Ted Church, last night and asked for today off.

"Why?" Church queried. Trout was silent. Church insisted.

"Well, if you must know," Trout replied, "I am going to be married, but it's a secret."

Margaret Burt, 25, of the Mayflower, will become Mrs. Trout some time today somewhere in Maryland.

And somewhere in France, Miss Burt's parents are vacationing.

AT least two WOL staff members will go to work with the milkmen not less than three times this fall and winter.

It's all because of those DX fans—that nearly extinct race of radio listeners who sit through the night to see what variety of stations their sets will pick up.

November 26 is marked for the first of these broadcasts, to run from 2 to 3 a. m.

Rudy Schram and a Mayflower Orchestra unit have been substituted on WRC's Arcade-Sunshine program Thursday nights.

Local listeners will be able to pick up Amalgamated's Bishop of Chinatown, Tom Noonan, through WOL from 4 to 5:30 p. m. Sunday.

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge is listed as a Dick Leibert fan. Leibert, former Washington theater organist, is now playing in Radio City. Once he directed White House programs.

That's why he and Hester Walker Beall, NBC studio hostess, will be married either in her home or in a local hotel. More definite information was withheld.

On one thing Provensen was definite, however. She said "yes——" when he said "will ya?"

Ted Husing will describe the crowning of "Miss America 1933" for Columbia at 10 tonight. This year's beauty contestants will be sheltered in Atlantic City's Municipal Auditorium, just in case it should be chilly out on the Boardwalk.

Olsen and Johnson, noisy comedy team, have signed up for a coast-to-coast Columbia network. They start October 6 at 10 p. m.

Harry Richman revives "The Birth of the Blues" for Columbia next Wednesday.

Another of those musical tours—this time it's Europe—will include "Get Yourself a New Broom" and "Sleep, My Darling, Sleep."

Florida's Day at the Chicago Fair brings Gov. David Sholtz, Attorney General Cary D. Landis and Agriculture Commissioner Nathan Mayo to National Broadcasting Co. microphones at 11:30 a. m. Monday. Washington Floridians may reach them through one of the N. B. C. twins here.

Southern California's Howard Jones, Notre Dame's coach, Hunk Anderson, Michigan's Harry Kipe, Fordham's Jim Crowley, Princeton's Fritz Crisler and the Navy's Rip Miller are some of the mentors who will review college football for Columbia Friday. The program will go over 51 stations, so Washingtonians should find it locally at 9:30 p. m.

Presswoman Dorothy Thompson will tell women to "read newspapers, too," over a Columbia network a week from Monday.

Upward Trend Of Sales Defies Higher Prices

Autumn Buying Is Shown Driving Trade Into Broader Gains.

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—The upward trend of retail sales has proceeded "unmindful of the general lifting of price levels," and the fall buying season has stimulated commercial activity into broader advances, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., said today.

"While a concerted vigilance is being maintained for any curtailment of buying, no evidence of this condition is apparent as yet," stated the agency's weekly review. "In fact, a doubling of the wages of six months ago has not been an infrequent occurrence, and with the 2,500,000 who have been returned to the ranks of the wage-earners since March, the covering of deferred necessities alone has been so insistent that the price factor has lost some of its former predominance in the selection of merchandise."

The slack that appeared around mid-August in the upward line of business "gradually was tightened toward the close of that month, so that the impetus of the strong seasonal expansion is proving propitious in restoring its continuity.

"With the days of grace now passed for voluntary submission of codes as provided by the Presidential edict, the more rapid rate of adoption from this point may make the progressive gains of the last few months pale into significance under the stronger light of the more spectacular achievements of the period which lies immediately ahead.

"The new attitude toward spending alone will afford a succor of no mean proportions to the indecisions of some merchants who had become restive because generous stocks acquired on a rising wholesale market were not disappearing into consuming channels as rapidly as was desired."

M. & O. Railroad Seeks To Extend Rates Cut

(Associated Press.)

The Mobile and Ohio Railroad, running between Mobile, Ala., and St. Louis, asked the Interstate Commerce Commission today for authority to extend another six months its experiment of operating under reduced passenger fares and no Pullman surcharges in an effort to regain business lost to automobiles and buses.

The reduced fares were authorized by the Commission last March to be effective for six months, and while the road has experienced some gains in revenue it said the reduced fares had not been in effect long enough to afford a fair test of the experiment.

Marshall County Bank Indorses Reorganizing

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 8 (AP).—Depositors of the Marshall County Bank at Moundsville have indorsed a reorganization plan and steps are being taken to enroll all depositors and put the plan into effect. It involves the exchange of certificates of deposit for certificates of indebtedness upon which gradual prorata payments would be made as collections, earnings and sales of assets warrant.

A report of the condition of the bank shows a loss of only 2 per cent on loans and discounts, a loss of 12 per cent on bond holdings and a depreciation of 30 per cent in stock holdings. Oil royalties appraised at $65,000 are estimated by others to be worth as high as half a million dollars.

Manufacturing of Wool Decreased During July

"The index of wool manufacturing activity in the United States for July, based on 1923-25 equals 100 and adjusted for seasonal variation, was 148.5," says the Exchange Service, "compared with 157.6 for June and 76.2 for July last year. The textile manufacturing index of the Federal Reserve Board was 129.0 for July, compared with 133.0 for June and 69.0 for July of last year. The board's index for general manufacturing was 98.0 for July, compared with 92.0 for June and 57.0 for July of last year."

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—Saturday trading will be resumed on the New York security markets and several of the commodity exchanges tomorrow. The few markets here that will remain closed include the Coffee, Sugar, Silk and Cocoa Exchanges. The Stock and Curb Exchanges have been closed for the past six Saturdays.

New financing scheduled for next week by 34 municipalities totals $5,160,038, says the Daily Bond Buyer. The largest item is a $950,000 issue of State of New Hampshire 3½ per cent bridge bonds.

Sales of the Grand Union Co. for the four weeks ended September 2 totaled $2,281,296, compared with $2,277,182 a year ago.

Howard T. McKee, president of the New York Cocoa Exchange for two years, has been nominated for a third term.

Stocks of lead in the United States on August 1 totaled 262,609 short tons, compared with 280,331 on July 1, and 249,693 at the beginning of August last year, reports the American Bureau of Metal Statistics.

The index of wool manufacturing activity in the United States for July, adjusted for seasonal variation and based on 1923-25 equals 100, was 148.5, says the New York Wool Top Exchange Service. This compares with 157.6 for June, and 76.2 for July, 1932.

Trade Group Amends Part of Securities Pact

The Federal Trade Commission has amended Article 16 of its Rules and Regulations under the Securities Act of 1933 to cover a prospectus for a plan of readjustment or reorganization of a company. The new amendment applies to the recently announced Form D-2.

Article 16 of the rules and regulations contains the following paragraph:

"Subject to the foregoing provisions, there may be omitted from a prospectus the following items of information contained in the registration statement."

"(5) If the registration form D-2 is filed as to any issuer or security: 16; 17; 34, except as to the issue or issues for which the registration is filed; 30; 31, as of a date approximately one year prior to the filing of the registration statement; 33, except as to principal underwriters and as to members of the reorganization committee; 38; 39; 40; 41; 42; 49; 50; 52; 54, except the last balance sheet and the last profit and loss statement; 55, except that the number of subsidiaries and affiliates shall be stated; all exhibits except the latest balance sheet and latest profit and loss statement; all supporting schedules to balance sheets and profit and loss statements."

Form D-2 is a sequel to Form D-1 which was made public recently. Form D-1 is for registration of certificates of deposit issued in anticipation of or in connection with a plan of reorganization or readjustment of a company. The distinction between Forms D-1 and D-2 is that Form D-1 is to be used at the time the bonds are first called by the protective committee while Form D-2 is to be employed for registration of the new securities when reorganization or readjustment takes place.

Federal Bonds Provide Bright Spot in Sales

General Market Drops One-Tenth; Trading is Light.

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—Although United States Government securities displayed a strong undertone in today's bond market, listed corporation issues of the secondary type continued under pressure in quiet trading.

Followers of the Federal group were especially cheered by the announcement that the Treasury's Sept. 15 financing would consist entirely of certificates at a record low interest rate. Increased open market purchases by the Federal Reserve System were also an encouragins factor. Most of the Liberty and Treasury loans recorded gains, with the 3¼s reaching another new high on a relatively heavy turnover.

Some railway and utility loans were rather heavy throughout. The carriers generally ignored optimistic estimates of freight car loadings for the week ended September 2, which will be officially preported tomorrow. Losses of a point or more included some issues of Alleghany Corporation, American & Foreign Power, Atlantic Coast Line, Canadian Pacific, Erie, Illinois Central, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Detroit Edison, North American Edison, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Southern and Western Maryern Maryland.

Warner Bros. 6s were among the heaviest traded of the industrial division, with a gain of 1½ points. Other advances were also held by loans of Paramount Publix, Standard Oils of New Jersey and New York, Kresge Foundation and United Drug.

Foreign obligations were dull and irregular. Bonds of Belgium and Germany rallied 1 to more than 2 points, but issues of Dutch East Indies sagged fractionally to 3¼ points. Cuban Republic 5½s recovered 1½ points.

Limit Is Asked In Slaughtering Of Livestock

(Associated Press.)

A limitation on the amount of livestock slaughtered was advocated yesterday by F. E. Mollin, secretary of the American National Livestock Association, as an aid to improving the condition of the industry.

He made the proposal at an Agricultural Adjustment Administration hearing on the proposed packers' marketing agreement after representatives of the packers had urged quick approval of the plan and one witness had advocated the establishment of minimum prices.

Mollin suggested that the livestock slaughter be confined to the first four grades of beef and that the next grade be canned to displace imports of canned beef from South America.

"Other grades," he added, "should be confined to the furnishing of meat to relief agencies at nominal cost even though the shipper received little more than the value of the hide above the actual marketing charges.

"Any excess which cannot be handled in these ways should go into the tank."

Stocks Yield Fraction On Professional Deals

Trading Is Listless Without Sign of Emerging Into Activity; Losses Average Two-Tenths; Sales Volume Totals 1,212,140 Shares.

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—Stocks went through the motions of a market today, accomplishing little so far as net changes were concerned and offering no clew as to when they would emerge from their present trading area.

Transactions looked highly professional. There was the familiar sag during much of the morning, followed by rallying tendencies which had the earmarks of short covering. Final variations from Thursday's close were mostly in fractions, the Standard Statistics-Associated Press composite showing a small net loss.

With volume only 1,212,140 shares, the session was just as inclusive as its predecessor this week. News that might have roused traders from their somnolence was lacking; such items as did come to light had obviously been discounted and the market was left to its own devices. Oils were still willing to rise moderately and steels looked a little better than of late, but rails eased, influenced, perhaps, by a 6-point drop in Union Pacific. Mining issues tilted up a bit.

Fractional gains in U. S. and Bethlehem Steels, American Can, Union Carbide, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Chrysler, Union Carbide, Anaconda, McIntyre Porcupine, Seaboard Oil, Sears Roebuck, and Texas Corporation were offset by meager losses in General Electric, Case, Harvester, American Tobacco "B," Canadian Pacific, National Distillers, Woolworth and a few others. Homestake Mining, Loew's, Du Pont and Allied Chemical improved a point or more.

The market's afternoon upturn coincided with stronger support for previously heavy grains.

General Motors' August sales statement indicated that consumer purchases of cars held up well last month. The manufacturer's sales to dealers decreased more substantially, which suggested that the company did not desire to increase its stocks. Total business done with dealers, including overseas shipments, was about 15 per cent under the June peak.

Dollar exchange improved mildly as the Treasury made its initial announcement of the price at which gold could be sold. Foreign gold currencies came under some pressure at times.

Such trade news as came to hand sounded a cheerful note. Advance estimates placed last week's freight-car loadings at a higher level than for the previous week, and there was some talk that a new high for the year might be established. Dun & Bradstreet's mercantile review said retail business was gaining, and that so far higher price levels had had no effect. Furthermore, it found that the seasonal full stimulus was beginning to make itself felt.

Minor Changes Suggested in Rice Mill Pact

(Associated Press.)

Only a minor modification was suggested Thursday in the proposed marketing agreement for the southern rice milling industry which was concluded Wednesday at the Farm Administration.

The basic provisions of the agreement, which virtually assured rice growers of parity prices for their 1933 crop, stand; but representatives of producers' organizations suggested that the mills be asked to purchase no rice save that which is accompanied by a Government grade certificate.

This, growers said, would compel farmers to have their rice graded and make the proposed agreement easier to enforce. Among the provisions of the pact is one for establishment of a merchandising fund, created by the millers, for advertising, creating new markets, facilitating exports and for other purposes. The fund would be administered by a committee of the millers under supervision of the Adjustment Administration.

Another change suggested by some representatives of growers would affect the schedule of discounts, smaller discounts than those proposed by the millers on low grades of rice being advocated.

The proposed agreement affects millers in Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas and Tennessee.

Curb's Prices Stiffen After Early Decline

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—Curb prices stiffened after forenoon easiness today, but progress was of an irregular nature.

Mild buying in oils spurred the list slightly higher at the beginning of the last hour but the move was of brief duration. Gulf Oil closed 2¼ points higher while others of the group were narrowly changed.

Utilities acted better than they have in recent sessions, leaders including Electric Bond & Share, American Gas & Electric and American Light & Traction holding steady. However, Commonwealth Edison continued its sagging tendencies, with a further drop of 2¾ points.

Alcohols showed slight change, excepting Kreuger Brewing which added a point to yesterday's moderate gain. Fractional advances predominated in the mining group. General Tire & Rubber dropped 4 points in nominal dealings while Pan American Airways and Aluminum Limited lost 2 or more each.

Transfers approximated 235,000 shares compared with 231,000 yesterday.

Rayon Index To Be Listed Every Month

New York, Sept. 8.—For the first time in the history of the rayon industry, the Textile Organon, published by the Tubize Chatillon Corporation, is in a position to present a monthly index of rayon poundage deliveries from 1923 to date. This compilation, which will be presented monthly, has been made possible through the cooperation of producers representing the American rayon industry.

The daily average index for August (based upon 1923-25 as 100) was 423, which compared with 470 for July, 450 for June, 517 for May and with 406 for August, 1932. While these figures give the impression of a sharp drop having occurred since May, such does not appear to be the fact, it is pointed out, as the high May average was due in part to heavy withdrawals from surplus stocks. In this connection the Organon states in part:

"The May, 1933, index of 517 represented shipments not only from current production but also from stocks which had gradually accumulated since the first of the year. The June and July indices of 450 and 470, respectively, probably represent production closely. The August index of 423 probably redects some minor holding back of stock for September delivery as well as a greater number of working days in August. Thus it will be seen that the decline in the adjusted delivery index is not as serious as might be imagined at first glance."

The index as calculated below is based upon actual figures received from manufacturers representing 98 per cent of the industry in the United States, inflated to 100 per cent, plus the foreign trade balance:

Price-Pegging On Live Stock Is Advocated

Minimum Figures Asked at Agriculture Department Hearing.

(Associated Press.)

Establishment of minimum live stock prices was advocated yesterday by Earl C. Smith, chairman of the national corn-hog committee, at an Agriculture Department hearing on the proposed marketing agreement submitted by the packing industry.

Earlier, Thomas E. Wilson, president of Wilson & Co., of Chicago and representing the processors committee of four of the Institute of American Meat Packers, urged quick approval of the agreement on the ground it would benefit the industry, the producer and the consumer.

Smith proposed a number of changes he contended were necessary to take care of the interests of the producer. The minimum price proposal read: "The institute and the processors' committee with the producers from time to time and as often as necessary, adopt such minimum prices to be paid for live stock including among other things weight and grade classifications, price differentials, territorial price differentials and such marketing plans as will further the declared purpose and policy of the act.

"Failing to do so the Secretary shall determine and announce such minimum prices and his decision shall be final."

Without referring to the NRA program by name, Smith said expenses of the producers recently had been increased and that they should be given some means of increasing their income.

Another proposal he advocated was that all financial benefit to the packers be passed on to the producers. The proposed agreement provides that the producers receive "a fair proportion."

Wilson said the packing industry would not "excessively increase prices. He said it "is not going to be foolish enough to try to put the prices beyond the power of the consumer to purchase. That would force the consumer to substitutes."

Foreign Markets.

London—Trading in most sections on the Stock Exchange today was quiet with price changes narrow. German bonds recovered after early losses, while oil shares were irregular. Home rails declined on realizing and international issues also were easier. Gilt-edged securities held steady. The market closed dull.

Paris—Lack of encouraging reports from abroad sent prices on the bourse lower with the exception of rentes, which were resistant. The closing was heavy.

Berlin—A general decline in prices was registered in a very quiet session on the boerse today. Reichsbank shares dropped 4½ centum and dye trust lost 3. The closing was weaker.

Capital's Store Sales Trailing In Fifth District

Washington's Retail Buying Falls Under Cities in Reserve Area.

Washington department stores' retail trade fell behind that of other cities of the Fifth Federal Reserve District in July. This is revealed in the monthly review of credit, business and agricultural conditions issued by William W. Hoxton, chairman and Federal Reserve agent of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Va.

July sales of local department stores were 7.9 per cent under those of the month a year ago, according to the survey. Sales of Richmond stores for that month reflected a gain of 8.2 per cent, while those of Baltimore stores showed an advance of 4.2 per cent.

Sales of stores in this classification in other cities of the district likewise presented an increase of 2.1 per cent in comparison with those of July, 1932. The district as a whole reported a recession of .3 per cent.

Local Sales Decline.

For the first seven months of the current year, local sales are 14.3 per cent below those of the corresponding period last year. Richmond sales are 9 per cent off. Baltimore's are 13.2 per cent behind and those of the district's other cities, 11.3 per cent lower. The district as an entirety revealed a decrease of 13 per cent in sales for the comparative period of 1933.

Stocks of local department stores as of July 31, 1933, compared with those of July 31, 1932, were 4.4 per cent more than those of the latter date. Those of Richmond stores were 11.6 per cent below; those of Baltimore stores, 6.3 per cent above; those of other district cities, 19.7 per cent below, and those of stores of the whole district, 7 per cent ahead.

In the comparison of July 31, 1933, stocks with those on hand June 30, this year, stocks of local stores are shown 3.9 larger; those of Richmond's stores, 5.6 per cent smaller; those of Baltimore's stores, 3.2 per cent greater; those of other cities' stores, 5.3 per cent smaller, and those of all stores in the district, 1.8 per cent more.

Turning of Stocks.

In July, 1933, local stocks were turned .203 times; those of Richmond, .275 times; those of Baltimore, .221 times; other cities, .195 times, and those of total district, .216 times. Local stock turnover since January 1, 1933, was 2.062; that of Richmond was 2.189; that of Baltimore, 2.016; that of other district cities, 1.56, and that of the whole district, 2.003.

The percentage of local July 1, 1933, receivables, collected in July, was 25.5; that of Richmond, 27.2; Baltimore, 21.8; other cities of the district, 24; the district itself, 23.8.

Wheat Climbs After Losses; Buying Begins

Market Closes Unsettled; Other Grains Rise; Provisions Down.

Chicago, Sept. 8 (AP).—An abrupt rise of grain values late today more than eclipsed an earlier downturn of 2 cents a bushel for wheat.

Restored confidence on the part of speculative buyers was attributed largely to greater interest shown in wheat available for immediate use. Improved demand demand for this wheat was illustrated by the fact that red winter grades, which were recently selling in St. Louis 8 cents under Chicago December delivery, were today bringing the December price or better.

Wheat closed unsettled, but near the day's top figures, ⅛ to ⅜ above yesterday's finish; corn unchanged to ⅛ higher; oats ⅛ to 1¼ up, and provisions varying from 7 cents decline, to a gain of 2 cents.

Precarious Crop Conditions.

Precarious crop conditions for wheat in Argentina attracted much notice, especially when suggestions of a possible break-up of drought failed to be fulfilled. It was following reports of cloudy weather in Argentina today that wheat prices here underwent 2 cents decline. The comparative ease, however, with which the market digested Eastern selling at this juncture did a good deal to encourage new buyers afterward.

Professional traders were prompt to accumulate wheat when prices gave way temporarily as a result of the marketing of weekly held lines, and dropped to the lowest point touched since June. Bullish sentiment was also stimulated by reports of larger flour purchasing in the Southwest. Crop experts said the situation in Argentina, where there has been practically no rainfall since last March, was strikingly parallel to experience in the United States winter wheat area of the Southwest this year.

Corn and oats closely followed the action of wheat. Rallies of feed grains were influenced in some degree by complaints of damage to corn in Iowa, northeastern counties in particular.

Provisions mainly reflected the course of grains. There was a better shipping demand for lard, with indications of a fair export trade.

Pioneer Cloak Mill To Open Under NRA

Waynesboro, Pa., Sept. 8 (Spl.).—The branch plant of the Pioneer Cloak Manufacturing Co., of Baltimore, will resume operations in Waynesboro Friday under the NRA code of fair competition, it was announced today.

The plant has been closed for the last five weeks. Between 60 and 70 women will be employed and all will receive increased wages for the 35 hour work week.

Many orders have been received by the company in Baltimore for the fall and winter, necessitating its reopening the Waynesboro branch.

September Bituminous Coal Output Increases

86,372 Cars Sold By General Motors

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—General Motors Corporation sales of cars and trucks to consumers in the United States in August held close to the level of July, and was more than double the business of August of last year.

The total was 86,372, compared with 87,298 in July, and only 37,230 in August of 1932. Sales to consumers in August ran ahead of sales to dealers, which were 84,504, compared to 92,546 in the previous month, and 24,151 in the like month of last year.

Total sales to dealers in August, including Canadian and overseas, were 97,614, against 109,918 in July, and 30,419 in August, 1932.

Cotton Exchange Votes Half-Holiday Wednesday

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—The board of managers of the New York Cotton Exchange today voted to close the exchange at noon next Wednesday in observance of the NRA half holiday proclaimed by Gov. Lehman.

The Stock Exchange is expected to close at 1 o'clock that day. Its board of governors was scheduled to meet late this afternoon to take formal action.

Missouri Life Stockholders Get Chance

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—Plans whereby stockholders of Missouri State Life Insurance Co., which has been sold to a group of New York financiers who have formed the General American Life Insurance Co., will have an opportunity to subscribe to capital stock of the new company, are now being formulated, it was announced here today.

"At present," said the announcement, "it is contemplated that a substantial minority portion of the stock of the new company, representing the $2,000,000 paid in capital and surplus, will be made available to the stockholders of Missouri State Life."

General American Life will begin operations immediately under the presidency of Walter W. Head, former president of the American Bankers Association. David Milton, son-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, jr., and president of Equity Corporation, an investment trust, is chairman of the board.

"It will be the aim of the new interests," the announcement stated, "to foster the Middle Western character of the company and to put into effect plans for the protection of the present policyholders of Missouri State Life Insurance Co., of whom there are more than 250,000."

Camera Is Invented to Take Metal and Alloy Temperatures

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 8 (AP).—A camera takes the "critical temperatures" of pure metals and alloys in a new, inexpensive and automatic thermal analyzer developed at the Michigan College of Mining and Technology by C. T. Eddy, associate professor of metallurgy.

"Critical temperatures" are those at which abrupt alterations take place in the structure of many metals. They can occur when the metal is neither red hot, nor even glowing, but black to the eye.

For instance a bar of steel, while held at high temperature is homogenized—"made all of one piece." But while this bar is cooling, it undergoes several changes in structure; it splits up. The temperatures at which this happens are the "critical" points.

To know these points is of great commercial value in heat treatment of metals. They are analogous to the abrupt change of water into ice at 32 degrees. They are as definitely fixed as this "freezing point," but no metals have the same critical points. Sometimes a point is even a little different when a metal is heating than when cooling.

So the locating of the "critical temperatures" has been a laboratory procedure growing in usefulness with the rapid increase in the alloys of steel and other metals. Most of the "machines" for measuring and recording these points have to be operated by a laboratory technician who, at a crucial stage in running the apparatus, has to perform a rather complicated set of operations.

Prof. Eddy's apparatus is cheaper to make, has fewer parts, is easily set up and easily calibrated. Although photographic, it can be operated in a room with much light. It employs a small furnace of test-tube shape, camera, a mirror galvanometer and a revolving drum covered with photographic paper. All the parts can be mounted on a table four feet square.

Two pieces of metal are placed in the furnace. One is the sample alloy of unknown critical temperature points. The other is a "standard," its critical temperatures well known. A pair of thermocouple wires embedded in each piece of metal give the temperatures of each one.

These temperatures are not, however, in terms of heat, but in a changing flow of electric current, which the heat generates. The electric current flowing from the sample of unknown critical points is used by revolve the drum. From the other or "standard" piece of metal the current operates a beam of light falling on the drum.

If the unknown specimen has a critical temperature the electric flow from it changes at that point. So does the speed of the drum. But the position of the beam of light falling on the drum does not change unless the standard has the same critical point. Consequently the curve which the beam traces on the photographic paper wrapping the drum will show on it shin.

The drum will show by its shifts the critical temperatures of the metal under examination. These may be the same as the "standard" metal, or different, or the sample may not have any such points.

Exports of Cuban Sugar Decrease 26,000 Tons

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—The New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange reported today that for the week ending September 2 Cuba exported only 15,000 tons of sugar compared with 41,000 tons in the corresponding week of last year.

Tobacco Men Oppose Higher Process Tax

(Associated Press.)

Cigar and scrap-chewing tobacco manufacturers, at a hearing to determine the rate of a processing tax on cigar leaf tobacco, yesterday opposed the maximum figure of 6.1 cents per pound, the difference between the current market price and the parity price.

D. G. Meyer, of the General Cigar Co., New York, pointed out the processing tax would have to be absorbed by manufacturers. He said the odd-cent cigar is a poor seller and the price must be maintained in even-cent units, such as 5 or 10-cent cigars.

Meyer said figures from manufacturers making 50 per cent of cigars sold in this country show a profit per thousand of $1.53.

The 6.1 cent tax, Meyer said, would "come pretty close to wiping out that profit."

W. R. Perkins, of P. Lorillard & Co., and S. R. Morrow, of Bloch Brothers, appeared in behalf of scrap-chewing tobacco manufacturers and opposed the proposed tax.

Morrow said the tax differentiates between the rate on tobacco used by scrap-chewing tobacco manufacturers and that used for making cigars.

Saturday Trading To Resume Today

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—Saturday trading in the New York security markets and most of the commodity exchanges will be resumed tomorrow.

The Stock Exchange, closed for the past six Saturdays, will go back to its usual two-hour week-end session. It had been expected in some quarters that the board of governors might continue the Saturday suspension, which was started on July 29 as a means of lightening the work of brokerage house clerical staffs, but the exchange decided to go back to the old schedule.

A few markets here will remain closed tomorrow. There will be no trading in coffee, sugar, cocoa or silk. The last named market has decided to cancel Saturday sessions for an indefinite period; the others customarily have a five-day week through September.

Clarksburg Auto Sales Are Heaviest in Years

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 8 (Spl.).—After being on a starvation sales diet for many months, Clarksburg automobile dealers are experiencing a resurge of business, a survey just compiled showing that they sold 415 cars during last month and achieved the biggest month's total in four years.

Of the cars sold, 188 were factory new and their price range was from $500 to $5,000 each. The trend here, as elsewhere, is toward lighter and less expensive cars. Recent increases in industrial pay rolls is credited by dealers as boosting sales. The county has 10,000 licensed cars, half of which are in Clarksburg, according to Charles E. Morgan, secretary of the Central West Virginia Automobile Association, and reports to him are that there will be many replacements during the next two months.

Cotton Drops Again on Fears Of Crop Report

December Sells at 9.03 as General Market Sinks 15 to 20 Points.

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—The feature in cotton today was the Government crop report. Uncertainty as to its showing was reflected by more or less irregularity during the early trading and while there were rallies after publication of the figures, prices later made new lows for the movement with December contracts selling off from 9.34 to 9.03 and closing at that figure. The final tone of the market was easy at net declines of 15 to 20 points.

There was a moderate early demand for near months, which included some price fixing partly for Eastern account and a little buying on the relatively steady showing of Liverpool. This demand was readily supplied, however, and the market worked off a few points later in the morning. Active months showed net losses of about 2 to 6 points just before trading was suspended to receive the Government report.

Further Decline Staged.

While the crop figures were considered slightly above average expectations, a further decline of 4 or 5 points on the resumption of business was followed by rallies on covering.

Some trade buying was also reported, but the market met increased offerings at net advances of 12 to 13 points and prices broke sharply during the last hour under a renewal of liquidation and increased Southern hedging. Closing quotations were the lowest of the day.

The Government report placing the indicated crop at 12,414,000 bales showed an increase of 100,000 bales over the August 1 indication, attributed to a moderate increase in the estimated acreage for harvest. Today's indication compared with a 12,106,000-bale average of recent private reports and was only 62,000 bales above the average expectation of New York Cotton Exchange members. Exports today, 24,857, making 700,126 so far this season. Port stocks, 3,027,871. United States port stocks, 66,604.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil closed barely steady at 4 to 13 points net decline. Sales were 37 contracts. The easiness was due to increased liquidation in December and January, which offset the better Government cotton report than expected, showing a crop of 12,414,000 bales and the rally in stocks and grain markets. Bleachable spot closed 4.50; September, 4.50; December, 4.80; January, 4.81; March, 5.00.

Larger Share For Farmers In Sales Sought

Dr. Ezekiel Plans to Urge Fairer Distribution of Market Returns.

(Associated Press.)

A simplification of marketing and distribution of farm products to permit a reduction in the amount intervening between what the farmer gets and what the consumer pays was described yesterday by Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel, economic adviser to Secretary Wallace, as an essential of a long-time agricultural program.

"The long-time pull means doing away with wastes that arise from unbridled and unchecked competition; and the long-time problem of increasing efficiency must be worked at gradually over many years," Ezekiel said. "The correction of distribution costs can only be gradual through the years."

He added that the Agriculture Department and the Agricultural Adjustment Administration were concentrating on emergency needs.

Share in Dollar.

To show just what he meant, Ezekiel turned to a paper he prepared for the American Statistical Association, which showed that while the farmer's per centage of the consumer's dollar was declining steadily, distributing and manufacturing costs held firm.

As an example of what could be done in lowering marketing costs, Ezekiel cited the distribution of meat products, observing:

"There are lots of small communities which refrigerated cars go through now, sent by the various packing companies. All could have one car go through and make deliveries instead of four or five."

Power in Distributing.

The packers' agreement gives the packers the power to unify distributing facilities with the Agricultural Administration expected to provide that some of the increased profits made through lowering costs will get back to the producer in higher prices, and to the consumer in lower levels of cost.

With a series of charts, Ezekiel illustrated what distributing costs meant in cents and dollars during the 1928-1932 period. In beef cattle, the packers and distributors took in each year approximately $5, while the farmer's share dropped from $15 to $7.50 for each 100 pounds.

The wheat producers' share of the dime or less paid for a loaf of bread declined from 1.9 cent in 1928 to 0.6 cent in October, 1932; that of the bakers, millers, transporters and distributors dropped from 7.2 cents to 6.1.

Factors of All Sorts.

Intervening factors of all sorts, such as fixed charges, rigid price structures and monopolies in restraint of trade, have prevented in the past the normal economic response to lowered farm prices for the farmer, Ezekiel said. He added:

"These restrictions must be modified and removed before agriculture can become prosperous and before city workers and farmers can exchange freely with one another. Emergency farm relief measures, directed primarily at controlling production, will help initiate the readjustment, but they must be accompanied by major changes in our economic structure and our international economic policies if lasting and substantial recovery is to be achieved."

Of the two basic problems now confronted, Ezekiel said, the first was the emergency needs, being met at the present through the adjustment administrator, and attendant restoration of purchasing power.

Attention to Efficiency.

He said the second is increasing efficiency, and "we will give our attention to that as soon as possible."

Ezekiel emphasized that "why city people haven't got jobs is that the farmer can't buy what he used to buy and needs to buy." He estimated 6,000,000 of the unemployed lacked work as a direct result of the farmer's flattened purse.

Suspension of the antitrust laws through the NRA and Agricultural Adjustment Administration machinery, Ezekiel said, was "not to throw down the barriers" to monopolies, but to permit working out a coordinated program "for the greater public good of everyone."

Wool Market.

Boston, Sept. 8 (A.P.) (U. S. Dept. Agr.)—The wool market continues quite active. The finer grades of territory wool are firm at recently advanced quotations. Medium quality fleeces are showing a strengthening tendency. Strictly combing 56s, ¾ blood, Ohio type, delivered Boston have realized 30 cents in the grease for sizable lines, the range of prices on this class and grade being 27@30 cents. Some houses are now asking 40 cents in the grease for 56s bright fleeces.

The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"Although the demand for wool was less pronounced this week than during either of the two preceding weeks, it is apparent that more than an average volume of business has been done; possibly 10,000,000 pounds, at prices fully up to the top of a week ago. The price tendency is, if anything, against the buyer.

"Reports from the piece goods markets indicate continuing interest in both staple men's wear lines and also in dress goods and cloakings. Shipments and sembers have had a good business in the past three weeks.

"Foreign markets keep very firm. Opening values at Sydney have been maintained this week and Adelaide has opened about on parity with the Sydney sale, prices at both selling centers being above the parity of domestic wool in bond."

"Mohair is rather slow in this market. Shearing is progressing in the Southwest. Reports are current that 33 cents for adult and 43 cents for kid hair have been refused in Arizona."

Christian Science Churches.

"Substance" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all of the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The golden text is from Psalms 135:13. "Thy name, O Lord, endureth forever; and Thy memorial, O Lord, throughout all generations."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning." (James 1:17).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science text book; "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The substance, Life, intelligence, Truth and Love, which constitute Deity, are reflected by His creation; and when we subordinate the false testimony of the corporeal senses to the facts of science, we shall see this true likeness and reflection everywhere." (Page 516).

David Loved by Jonathan

Heir to Saul's Throne and Future King of Israel Knitted Their Souls in Lasting Friendship; David Typifies God and Jonathan Servant of Christ.

"Jonathan."
Golden text: "A Friend Loveth at All Times." (Prov. 17:17.)
Time: About 1063 B. C.
Place: Gibeah, Saul's Capital.

By Wyman Walker.

Jonathan was a young prince and presumed heir to Saul's throne when Goliath, the giant Philistine, hurled blasphemies at the army of Saul in the Valley of Elah for 40 days.

David, Israel's deliverer, came up from Bethlehem and slew Goliath, and this was the beginning of Jonathan and David's friendship. "The soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul." What a beautiful friendship this was! Bound together, knitted and grafted as of one.

We next see Jonathan humbling himself. "Jonathan stripped himself of the robe that was upon him and gave it to David." Evidently Jonathan realized that David was the Lord's anointed and would ascend his father's throne, which had been rejected, so we find Jonathan exalting David because Jonathan saw in David Israel's deliverer and their God-appointed king.

Jonathan was a man of faith and it was his faith and confidence in God that drew him close to David.

Jonathan's love and devotion to David show the type of love each of us should have for our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. The souls of these two men were knit together just as the tissues of the flesh.

Read the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah and see the state of comeliness and suffering our Lord bore for us and for the remission of sin. Can we realize His love for mankind?

No man's love is greater than that of the Father—"God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son," and regarding our love for Him, the Lord has promised a crown of life to them that love Him.

In this whole story, we find our Lord as King highly typified in David and in Jonathan, the servant of Christ.

When David and Jonathan renewed their friendship, they planned together to find out Saul's true intent. David said to Jonathan, "And add this also, that thou gavest me leave so to do." (Josephus.)

In other words, David is telling Jonathan that if he does not take the responsibility for his leave, to say nothing—so, if we can not be true Christians and take up our cross and follow Him and confess Him before men, then we shall have no part with Him.

So there rests a responsibility upon every Christian to do the will of God if we are to receive His promises and blessings. "But I know you that you have not the love of God in you." (John 5:42.)

Sometimes we are too prone to forget God and our Lord and Master and His love for us by letting the things of selfishness blind us—where is our love for God's chosen people? God told Abraham that out of his seed He would establish unto Himself a people, a peculiar people.

"I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee; and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed." Were we not blessed in Jesus Christ, our Lord, Israel's future King?

The Apostle Paul is a wonderful illustration of a man of faith, whose eyes were set on the future reign of Christ and who gave up everything because of his faith and love for Him.

Saul's anger was kindled in such a rage, when he found that Jonathan had taken a stand for David, that he tried to kill his own son, but God was with Jonathan and saved him from the evils of his father.

Are we as spontaneous in taking a stand against the evils of this world in defense of our Lord Jesus? Thanks be to the Father that His grace is sufficient to all our needs: "My grace is sufficient for thee; for my strength is made perfect in weakness." (II Cor. 12:9.)

God's love for us is an everlasting love, a genuine love. Paul, to the church at Philippi, writes: "And this I pray that your love may abound yet more and more in knowledge and in all judgment. That ye may approve things that are excellent; that ye may be sincere and without offense till the day of Christ." (Phil. 1:9,10.)

Dr. Bohanan Will Preach At Rock Creek Church.

The Rev. Dr. Franklin J. Bohanan, rector of Rock Creek Episcopal Church, Rock Creek Church road and Webster street northwest, will preach the sermon at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow. Holy communion will be celebrated at 8:30 a. m.

The services tomorrow at Holy Comforter Chapel, Rock Creek parish, 5714 Georgia avenue, include celebration of holy communion at 7:30 a. m. and at 11 a. m., and evening prayer and address at 7:30 p. m.

Dr. Stockdale to Preach at First Congregational.

Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets northwest, will preach at both services tomorrow at the church. In the morning at 11 o'clock, he will preach on "A Commandment Not Too Hard." At the 8 o'clock service in the evening, Dr. Stockdale's subject will be "What Makes a Leader?"

The Sunday school departments and classes meet at 9:45 a. m. The Women's Bible Class meets in the west parlor at 10 o'clock and the Men's Class in the east parlor at the same hour.

Founder of School Of Open Door to Lecture.

Virginia Neuhausel, of Boston, starts a series of five free lectures tomorrow night at 8:15 in the Arlington Hotel.

She is founder of the School of the Open Door, which had its beginning in Boston. This is her third season in Washington in behalf of the philosophy which she is promulgating.

She is a firm believer in the fact that life has a principle, and by understanding that principle, the lay person of today can raise to heights far beyond his fondest expectations.

Mrs. Neuhausel claims that the salvation of humanity rests upon understanding the principle of life, applying it to every day affairs.

White House Awning Blaze Fails to Excite First Lady or Guests.

A meeting of National Community Chest women chairmen being held by Mrs. Roosevelt in the east room of the White House was temporarily interrupted early yesterday when an awning caught fire just outside the room.

Mrs. Roosevelt advised the women members not to become alarmed. The fire apparently started from a workman's cigarette tossed from an upper story. No fire alarm was sounded and the meeting was continued when guards quickly extinguished the blaze.

Stoefen Beats Grant, Joins Perry, Crawford, Shields in Semifinals

Atlanta Star Loses 4-Set Struggle

10,000 Watch Conqueror of Vines Bow, 8–6, 6–4, 3–6 and 7–5.

Stoefen Plays Perry and Crawford to Oppose Shields Today.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 8 (AP).—Two young American tennis giants fought their way to the semifinals of the national men's singles championships today and carry the last hopes of the home guard against the challenge of two of the world's finest shotmakers, Frederick J. Perry, Britain's Davis Cup hero, and Jack Crawford, Australia's all-conquering ace.

Lester Stoefen, blond Californian, who towers 6 feet 3½ inches and enters the semifinals for the first time in his short career, plays the brilliant Perry tomorrow, while Frank X. Shields, the equally towering New Yorker, meets the great Crawford in two international battles that will put both American youths to the severest tests.

Stoefen gave an excited gallery of 10,000 spectators their biggest moments of an overheated day by outlasting Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, jr., the scrappy Atlanta bantam, who ended the reign of Champion Ellsworth Vines yesterday. But Perry and Crawford flashed by far the most impressive tennis of the quarter-final round.

Stoefen's Heft Advantage.

Stoefen took Grant's measure in a rough-and-tumble "David and Goliath" duel decided by scores of 8—6, 6—4, 3—6, 7—5, and with the result in doubt right up to the finish, despite the Los Angeles star's marked physical advantages.

Perry trounced Adrian Quist, the handsome young Australian who conquered Wilmer Allison, with a magnificent brand of tennis, 6—4, 6—4, 6—0.

Crawford administered a tennis lesson to Clifford B. Sutter, of New Orleans, third ranking American, to the tune of 6—3, 6—3, 6—4, and the issue was never in doubt.

The powerful Shields, despite some trouble with his booming service, bombarded his way to victory in the other quarter-final over the resolute Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J., national indoor title holder, by scores of 6—4, 6—4, 4—6, 6—3.

Thus the tournament lines were drawn for two duels of tennis styles as far apart as the poles. Shields packs more dynamite than Stoefen in his strokes and has much more experience to his credit, although both are only 23 years old. Perry is only 24 and Crawford, at 25, is nearing the climax of his greatest season.

Both foreign stars have tasted rare fruits of triumph this year. Both have developed an all-around game and great control, plus the ability to "take" the American service. On form thus far in the tournament, they figure as slight favorites over the American exponents of the slam-bang, slashing type of game, in which Shields' resources seem more potent than Stoefen's.

There has been only one all-foreign final in the history of the national tournament, the 1926 battle in which Lacoste beat Jean Borotra

Cochet Affirms New Status As Pro

PARIS, Sept. 8 (AP).—Henr Cochet, famous French tennis star, formally announced tonight he had turned professional and signed a contract with Big Bill Tilden.

Cochet's announcement, made to sports writers, definitely ended all speculation as to what the former world's champion would do. He will make his pro debut here in the Franco-American series starting September 23 when he and Martin Plaa will represent the tricolor against Tilden and Bruce Barnes.

Cochet had declared yesterday that he would play in the series, but would not accept any pay for his services and thus, he insisted, would retain his amateur status.

To that Pierre Gillou, president of the French Tennis Federation, declared Henri automatically would forfeit his amateur standing by appearing in a match with professionals for which admission was charged.

Informed of Gillou's decision, Cochet declared he would turn pro "at the first opportunity" and the opportunity quickly presented itself.

"I believe we are headed straight for open tournaments," the Frenchman said this morning.

Harper's 68 Leads Stars in Practice

Cincinnati, Sept. 8 (AP).—Nearly the entire field of 162 players who will participate in the national amateur golf tourney starting Monday, appeared at the Kenwood course today to get the lay of the land.

Chandler Harper, of Virginia Beach, Va., shot a 68 as against par 71, but for the most part scores vied with the day's intense heat to see which could get the highest.

George Dunlap, of New York, who turned in a good 69 yesterday, broke away to a bad start this afternoon, took a 7 on the par 4 first and finished with 41 for nine holes. Par is 36.

Vines to Turn Pro, Reports Persist

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 8 (AP).—Despite the absence of any further statement as to his intentions from the deposed champion himself, it is authoritatively understood that H. Ellsworth Vines, jr., will soon announce his intention to turn professional and make his debut in New York early in January with Big Bill Tilden in a series of matches with a French team composed of Henri Cochet and Martin Plaa.

Vines refused today to say anything about the oft-rumored and frequently published reports of his plan to leave amateur ranks. It is understood that he intends to play in the Pacific Coast championships before making any definite move that would complicate his amateur standing.

Only the formal signing of contracts and arrangements of financial details, it is understood, stand between Vines and a professional career, thereby assuring the most interesting developments since Tilden and Vincent Richards forsook Simon-pure ranks.

Yanks Defeat Browns by 5 to 3

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (AP).—Russell Van Atta, making his first start since his recent illness, held the St. Louis Browns to four hits, while the Yankees pounded out their third straight victory, 5 to 3, today.

Van Atta allowed only one safety up to the eighth. Then singles by Gullic and Hemsley and a pass to West loaded the sacks and Carl Reynolds cleared them with a triple for all the St. Louis runs. The Yanks batted Dick Coffman, recently recalled from Milwaukee, out in five innings, but could not score on Braxton and Gray.

Charest Finalist In Senior Tennis

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 8 (AP).—Clarence M. Charest, of Washington, and S. Jarvis Adams, of New York, reached the final round of the National Veterans Tennis Singles championships at the West Side Tennis Club today. They will meet for the title tomorrow.

Charest, eliminated the Chicago player, A. R. Kaiser, after dropping the first set, 6—8, 6—4, 6—0.

Adams won in straight sets but only after a gruelling battle with Fred C. Baggs, of New York, Baggs carrying both sets to deuce before surrendering, 7—5, 7—5.

Tigers Beat Red Sox Twice By 4-3 Scores

Boston, Sept. 8 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers took a double-header from the Red Sox today, winning both games, 4-to-3, before a Shriners' and Ladies' day crowd of 10,000.

Each side used three pitchers in the nightcap although the Red Sox made only five hits. "Firpo" Marberry started in the box for Detroit but left the game after the fifth when he suffered an attack of indigestion.

Fans to Honor Bluege Today At Game

IT is Ossie Bluege Day at Griffith Stadium this afternoon, and thousands of Washington fans are expected to pay homage to a great fellow off the baseball diamond and to one of the greatest third-sackers on it. For 12½ seasons Ossie has cavorted around the hot corner in incomparable style.

Today's program is a lengthy one, with bands 'n' everything, and there will be something doing from noon until the game ends.

As to the game, the Chicago White Sox will be making their 1933 adieu to the Capital, with Lefty Earl Whitehill and Ed (Bull) Durham as the likely starting pitchers.

President Clark Griffith of the Nats is interested in a college southpaw pitcher who answers to the name of Saunders, but is having trouble locating him. Last year he performed at Richmond University, and he has been doing some great work with an amateur team at Wytheville, Va., during his vacation.

The youngster received a trial here last spring and showed a pretty fair curve and dazzling speed, but at the time said he wanted to finish out at college before considering a pro offer.

Cubs Win 5th Straight; Braves Lose 7 In Row

Chicago, Sept. 8 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs, continuing their desperate though belated bid to retain their National League laurels, ran their winning streak to five straight today by sweeping the three-game set from the Boston Braves, 8 to 3. It was the seventh straight defeat for the Braves.

Hubbell Halts Pirates, 2-1, For Giants

Traynor's Error Factor as New York Club Beats Hal Smith.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 8 (AP).—Carl Hubbell pulled the New York Giants' faltering fortunes back into safer regions today and the National League leaders increased their lead to 6½ games by beating the Pirates, 2 to 1, in the final game of their series.

The Giants lost the series, 3 to 2, but the final triumph quenched a good many of the Pirate hopes of beating out the New Yorkers in the pennant race.

Hubbell Outshines Smith.

Young Hal Smith pitched well enough for most occasions, but couldn't keep up to Hubbell. Hubbell hurled five straight hitless innings through the middle of the game. It was his twenty-first victory of the year.

The first Giant tally came with two out in the third. Joe Moore beat out a scratch single to Traynor and went on to second when Pie heaved the ball past first. Hughie Critz scored him with a single through the middle of the diamond.

In the seventh, George Davis opened with a double, moved to third on Gus Mancuso's sacrifice and tallied on Blondy Ryan's long fly.

3 Pirates Stranded.

With the bases full, two out and one run across in the eighth, Hubbell sent for a towel to dry his hands, pitched one ball to Traynor and the third-sacker went out on an easy bounder to end the rally.

The victory was the twenty-fourth the Giants have won by one run this season.

Cronin Leads With 4 Hits In Triumph

WITH bats belching base hits at the proper moment, the Nats yesterday riddled the White Sox with a running fire of direct hits of varied description and to the tune of a shrieking Ladies' Day crowd of 10,000, pounded out an 11-2 victory.

Thus Washington neared the day of reckoning with the Yankees, who maintained an even pace 8½ games in the rear of the Nats, with a 6-3 victory over the Browns up in the Bronx, where the 1932 pennant is at half-mast, mourning the imminent demise of the Yankees' 1933 pennant hopes.

Alvin Crowder laid to heavily with both his arm and his bat to cement his twenty-second victory of the season and outlast four Chicago pitchers, who were thumped seven singles, five doubles and a triple. Crowder contributed a single that put the Nats in the lead in the second inning and then he bashed out a double to take part in the general rout of the Chicago forces.

Four Hits by Cronin.

But Joseph Edward Cronin, the lad whose managerial responsibilities were to weigh heavily upon him and ruin his career as a ball player, according to the New York critics, was the real cut-up of the afternoon.

Cronin was so heavily burdened by his managerial duties that he could hit only two singles and two doubles.

Joe Heving, who pitched with success against the Nats out West, was the first to feel the shock of the Nats' batting attack, but the full force of their hitting fury was unloosed against big Chad Kimsey in the eighth inning when Joe Kuhel lambasted a triple with the bases full, among other things.

Sox Take Lead.

Crowder permitted only one hit of greater dimensions than a single and it led o the run that gave the Sox a 1-to-0 lead at the outset. Mule Haas larruped a triple to right center and scored on Jimmy Dykes' fly.

The Nats rebounded with two runs in the second, when Cronin launched the attack with a single

Dan Sabath Winner of Lincoln Fields Feature After 9-Minute Delay at Post

Renick Pilots Victor by 3 Lengths

CHICAGO, Sept. 8 (AP).—Dan Sabath, racing in the colors of Albert Sabath, of Chicago, easily scored in the Des Plaines Purse at 5½ furlongs at Lincoln Fields today.

There was a delay of 9 minutes at the post because of the fractiousness of Dan Sabath. Jocky S. Renick, who was aboard Dan Sabath, got an opening at the head of the stretch when the field went wide, and won the race by three lengths. Benevolence, the early pace maker, beat Mumsie for the place. Wacoche, even-money shot, finished out of the money.

Dan Sabath ran the distance in 1:06 3-5, paying $8.90 in the $2 straight mutuels.

Upset at Belmont.

Belmont Park Race Track, N. Y., Sept. 8 (AP).—Watch Him, a colt that ran second to Equipoise in a race this year, was installed a 13-to-20 favorite for the Ramapo Purse here today, but Mrs. J. D. Hertz' Color Bearer failed by an inch. I. L. Burch's much-improved gelding, Thursday, ran the fastest mile of the meeting, to take the purse in a bitter drive. The 8 furlongs were covered in 137 flat. H. C. Phipp's Devalera was third, three lengths back. Jericho II, the only other entrant, was left. Thursday was second choice, paying 18 to 5.

DeValera had all his speed today and set a sizzling pace. Despite this, the upset colt could not get far enough away from his rivals. Watch Him and Thursday, running like a team throughout, were waiting to strike.

Inside the last furlong DeValera stopped and the other two fought it out like two trains. The Washington, D. C. apprentice, Jimmy Sullivan, on the inside, rode a strong finish and his mount dropped his nose in front in the very last nod. Watch Him felt the whip through the stretch and gave all he had.

Shades of 1812—British Again Invade Capital

Armed not with the muskets, grapeshot and canister that marked the sacking of Washington 121 years ago, but bearing cricket bats in friendly conflict, the British were in Washington again yesterday. Above are two members of the Cambridge Vandals, showing their best form, in the match with a picked Washington team which trailed, 180 to 98 for 9, in a drawn game. At left—P. M. Heywood, of Yorkshire, Vandal captain, the bowler. At right, Lieut. Bill Sumner, of Dorset, exhibiting the approved style in the wicket.

At the Post . . .

Dear Al: Lincoln Fields, Sept. 8.

It's a gift. I mean the way Mrs. Bennings' lovely boy can make these sleepers run. At times it looks as if I had the dope concession at this track. Today, the awakening was staged with El Cidio. Here's a horse that hasn't been able to get out of his own way for a number of races. But given the Bennings stamp of approval, he was second today, beaten a half length. We were going to get a $96.60 mutuel! And El Cidio was cut off at the stretch turn. Otherwise he would have been home by at least two lengths. And for tomorrow, ah, tomorrow.

BILL.

First race—Even Play goes for the Bennings dough in the opener. Seems just a bit better suited here than Transcall, the one that must be beaten. Indian Salute to take care of the others.

Second race—Miss Marr appears to have found a field in this that she will relish. Not the speediest thing in the world, but fairly dependable when the onions are on the line. Journey's End and Aegis figure close up.

Third race—I believe this race has been picked out as the spot for Thomasville. This one has had the clockers' mouths open of late. Flickamaru and Woodlander will be ready if the top one makes mistakes.

Fourth race—Louie Dear was mentioned freely in the recent dope stories, but I believe he can take this race without a shot in the arm, or leg, or wherever they give it. LeFiore and Lamp Black for the other awards.

Fifth race—In Par ran a peach of a race for me the other day, and now I'm going to try to move him up. Must be at tops to take care of the like of Snow Play and Yankee Waters, but I believe it can be done.

Sixth race—Royal Blunder will appreciate this route and may be the one to knock off the favorites in the stretch battle. This one can do better than that recent race. Gets a long pull in the weights from Indian Runner and a good chuck from Big Brand.

Eighth race—Fort Dearborn could be the wake-up horse here. His best would make a tough mile and a sixteenth for All Hail and Port o'Play.

Al Houghton Adds 70 to Tie for Fourth With Glens Falls Open at Half-Way Mark

Shorey Also Remains in Contest

Hines Trails Leader by Single Stroke; Guldahl in Third Place.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 8 (AP).—Scoring 6 birdies that aided him in producing a 69, Walter Kozak, of Flushing, Long Island, duplicated his score of the first round to assume the lead at the halfway mark of the Glens Falls Open championship.

Kozak nosed ahead of the first day's pacesetter, Jimmy Hines, Great Neck, Long Island, by a single stroke, as Hines, needing a 3 par for a tie, ruined his chances visiting a trap at the home green. His 71 gave him a 139 total.

Guldahl Is Third.

Ralph Guldahl, runner-up to Johnny Goodman in the National Open, scored a 69 to pull into third place with 142. Tied at 143 were Al Houghton, crack Washington, D. C., pro, who added a 70 to his 73 of the first day; Johnny Farrell, who added a 68 to his 75; Bill Mehlhorn, with 72-71, and Joe Brennan, with 69-74.

With the field reduced for the final thrust tomorrow, virtually all of the big shots were still in the race. Denny Shute, British Open king and defending champion, had a 148, while Willie MacFarlane, former open champion, shot 145.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

ALEXANDER McGILLIVRAY, famous leader of the Muscogee Indians, was born about 1739 near what is now Wetumpka, Fla. He was one-fourth Indian blood, his mother being the daughter of a French soldier and an Indian princess. His father was a Scotch merchant. McGillivray received a good education in South Carolina, but at the age of 17 he returned to his Indian relatives of the Muscogee tribe and was then elected chief. His barbaric love for display made "chief" too common for his title, so he adopted the title of "emperor."

During the Revolutionary War he allied his people with the British, accepting a commission as colonel in the British army. As such he led his warriors against the revolutionists along the western frontiers of Georgia and the Carolinas.

Now emperor of his Indians and colonel in the British army, McGillivray retained both titles and accepted a commission from Spain in exchange for which he used his influence to keep American settlers out of what was then the Southwest.

Even with all his titles, McGillivray was not unwilling to accept another—in 1790 President Washington made peace with him, one of the conditions being that McGillivray be made a brigadier general in the United States Army.

Although he remained hostile to the white men to his death, he had foresight to recognize that theirs was the coming civilization, and he trained his Indian subjects as best he could in the ways of the white men.

They came back for more in the third—one more. Catcher Grube went into a trance to muff Goslin's easy pop and Cronin moved the Goose to third with a double into right field. Schulte's fly scored him.

With two out, Myer singled, Goslin singled and Manush doubled and the Nats had a 4-to-1 lead. They didn't score in the fifth, but when the Sox put a pair of singles by Haas and Dykes together to get another run in the sixth, the Nats retaliated by scoring a run on passes to Crowder and Myer, and Cronin's third hit.

Two were out in the seventh when the wrecking got under way again. Kimsey hit Sewell and Crowder knocked the ball up against the left-center fence to bring the catcher home. The run was off Gaston, who ran into a five-run squall in the eighth.

The Nats' big guns swung into action in the eighth when Goslin singled to center, Manush singled to center, Cronin doubled to left, Schulte walked and Kuhel emptied the loaded bases with a whistling triple to dead center before a soul was retired.

Indian Spring Golfers Led by Sasscer's 74

With an additional day given for qualifying, Leroy Sasscer yesterday posted a snappy 74, three over par, to take the medal lead in the Indian Spring Country Club golf championship.

Sasscer, playing in top form, scored a 36—38 to take away the temporary honors from John Holzberg by three shots.

Welsh Meets McElvenny In Finals

THE final match in the Washington Grove tennis tournament, to be played at 3:30 this afternoon, offers local enthusiasts a splendid opportunity of judging for themselves the quality of racquet wares offered by Ralph McElvenny, who plays Barney Welsh.

McElvenny, a comparative newcomer to these parts, has been cutting a meteoric swath through the best local opposition offered so far, but his orbit has not taken him in the path of Welsh until today. The public parks champion is generally conceded to be, next to Dooly Mitchell, the best of the old local standbys, and may prove the person to upset the upsetter.

Close observers of the game who have seen both contestants in action, but not against each other, are generally of the opinion that Welsh's hard play may be offset by the better all-around court tactics of McElvenny.

Government Doubles To McElvenny, Phillips

Ralph McElvenny and Latry Phillips, both of the Treasury yesterday won the doubles championship in the Government Employes' tennis tournament by defeating Harry Goldsmith and Sidney Wallenstein 6—0, 6—2, 6—0. The match was played at the Columbia Country Club.

McElvenny, who has in the past few weeks played Jack the Giant Killer to practically every outstanding Washington racquet wielder, has one more obstacle to hurdle before he can call the Government Employes' singles title his own. He meets Alan Staubly in the finals Sunday at 3 o'clock at a place yet to be announced.

Four up at the end of the first 18, Cornwell always held the whip hand in the battle. The new champion, who succeeds Billy Shannon, shot a 35-40—75 in the morning, and a 39 for the first nine of the afternoon. Dodd had a 41-38—79 for the morning.

Sam Watkins beat Billy Shelton in the second flight finals, 1 up in 19 holes. Watkins whipped Carl Corby, 5 and 4, in the semifinals, while Shelton defeated Earl Skinker, 1 up.

In the sweepstakes event, Mike Gormely, with 103-43—60, won first low net prize. Low gross went to Harvey Johnson, who had 38-38—76.

Macks Win, 9 to 2; Foxx Hits No. 42

Philadelphia, Sept. 8 (AP).—Taking their third straight from the Cleveland Indians, the Athletics today climbed to within two games of third place with a 9-to-2 win.

Merritt (Sugar) Cain's six-hit pitching and Jimmy Foxx's forty-second homer of the year had a lot to do with the A's win over the third-place Indians.

Wes Ferrell started for the Indians, but gave way to Willis Hudlin after Foxx's four-bagger in the seventh. Before he left, however, Ferrell accounted for both of Cleveland's runs with a homer in the fifth.

Stoefen Beats Grant, Gains Semifinals

for the title. There have been only three invading victors, Hugh Doherty of England in 1908, Lacoste in 1926-27 and Henri Cochet in 1928.

The extent of the tennis turnover within a year's time is manifest by the fact that of the 1932 unofficial world's "first ten," only Perry at No. 7 and Crawford at No. 10 survive in this tournament. Shields and Stoefen were not considered of top-ranking international caliber a year ago.

Crawford is seeking the "grand slam" of tennis, having already taken the Australian, French and British singles championships this year in competition with the world's foremost players.

Grant Drew Crowd.

This was Grant's first appearance on the stadium turf. The near-capacity crowd testified to the demand to see the scrappy 120-pounder who thrashed the once-dominant Vines and continued to play with defiant determination until finally battered down by his tall rival.

Grant fought tenaciously to capture the first set, galloping off with a 4—1 lead before the handsome but startled Stoeffen could get his bearings. "Bitsy" took too many chances, however, in his overanxiety and finally dropped the set. With it went most of his hopes, for Stoefen was obviously better equipped for an extended encounter, in which Grant had to do most of the running.

The Shields-Mangin match was chiefly a duel of service. Shields broke through once in each of the first two sets for the deciding margin, but experienced a lapse in the third set as he dropped his cannonball delivery twice in succession. He broke through early in the fourth set, however, and smashed his way to victory with an almost ferocious determination. All told, Shields crashed over 13 service aces and banged out 32 placements in four sets, a new "high" for the tournament.

Perry in Top Form.

Perry's offensive strokes were scarcely less conspicuous in his match with Quist. It was unexpectedly one-sided as the British ace indulged himself with a four-game winning streak to take the opening set and then reeled off 10 games in a row in the last two sets.

Sutter won and lost the day's only "double-header." The sturdy New Orleans youth lost to Crawford after gaining his quarter-final bracket in the morning at the expense of Vivian McGrath, 17-year-old Australian, who features a two-handed backhand shot.

Zbyszko and Shikat Matched for Stadium

Joe Turner is doing his best to add to the typesetters' troubles by attempting to match Wladek Zbyszko, the Old Man of the Mat, with Dick Shikat in a feature bout on the Thursday night wrestling card at Griffith Stadium next week.

Zbyszko flung a high, wide and handsome challenge at Ray Steele through Turner, but Steele had departed for the Pacific Coast, so efforts are being made to bring in Shikat. Gino Garibaldi and Sol Slagel have already been signed for a cofeature.

Another Tax.

Another tax has been invented in this fair State where I abide; on everything that's bought or rented, a fresh assessment is supplied. You buy yourself a linen collar and pay the price which is no joke; then pay a fraction of a dollar to keep the State from going broke. You're penalized for spending money for anything you may desire, for laying in some milk and honey, for getting Liz a rubber tire. You're penalized if you go boosting the local trade, that's hit the floor; the tax collectors now are roosting around the front of every store. You're penalized for earning smackers, your income's taxed, both fore and aft, although big bankers and their backers, it seems, can dodge that sort of graft. And now you're taxed for spending smackers, you're taxed for every round doubloon; you can not buy your children crackers unless you pay for such a boon. We should be filled with sweet contentment that we still have our meager rolls; but something like a bleak resentment is filling many care-worn souls. We see our little wads diminish, the wads we worked so hard to build; "Oh, what," we ask, "will be the finish, unless this taxing graft is killed? We're taxed for earning and for spending, we're jailed if we should hoard our gold; and still the tax collector's wending to shear the sheep in every fold."

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York, Sept. 9.—The success of low-priced opera at the Hippodrome has thwarted one form of racketeering—the claque.

High-salaried stars at the Met were forced to pay heavy tribute to these claques—groups which gathered in the balcony and led the applause when their employer-star made an entrance or exit. If the star refused to pay, then the claques would boo or hiss.

But at the Hippodrome they are stopped completely. In the first place, the singers make only nominal salaries and can not afford to pay tribute. Too, the Hippodrome audiences are made up of people in modest circumstances, who are so thrilled to be able to see opera at low admission prices that they wildly cheer every singer—demonstrations that would drown out any boos of a hostile claque.

One well-known prima donna has been in several of the Hippodrome operas at a salary much less than she usually commands.

"If necessary, I would enjoy singing here for nothing," she explained. "After singing so many years before polite but bored audiences, it's thrilling to sing for people who really enjoy your art as much as do these people."

Catty Revenge.

A fellow, whose fiendish mind should have devised tortures in the middle ages, has discovered an effective way to get revenge on some neighbors who have a habit of playing their radios with the loud speakers turned on full volume.

Not owning a radio, he can't retaliate; but, he does own a piano. So, he has trained his cat to walk up and down the piano keys for hours. The never-ending off-tune sounding of the piano keys is three times the annoyance of a loud speaker.

Cafe Caution.

A reporter, interviewing a railway president in his private car was invited to have breakfast. He ordered buttered toast, but dry toast was served with butter on the side.

"You know I never allow toast already buttered to be served on my trains," the rail magnate explained. "I'll never forget when I was a youngster I worked for a short time in a restaurant. All the unused butter brought back from the dining tables was saved by the cook and used when anyone ordered buttered toast. I was so outraged that when I became head of this line the first order I gave was for toast to be served dry with butter on the side."

Not only the old-time theatergoers who remember her singing "Nancy Brown" will miss Marie Cahill, but also the taxi drivers, doormen and traffic cop along Central Park West. Her death has left a void there.

For years she took a stroll late at night along this verdant avenue, and she was never in too big a hurry to stop for a moment's chat.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Psoriasis.

A PERSON with psoriasis might just as well train himself to disregard his disorder. This is the rule.

Psoriasis is a simple, chronic skin disorder which causes but few symptoms. It is apt to take the form of an unsightly eruption, but there is compensation in the fact that it generally develops on parts of the body that nobody but the owner of the skin has any business looking at. The round, scaly, and sometimes slightly raw psoriasis patches develop on the legs most frequently. They often appear on the trunk and frequently the arms are the locations of choice. All of these areas can be kept covered without causing talk.

Usually there is some itching and that may lead to the indulgence of scratching. But mild itching is of minor consequence, and scratching is a luxury which a person with psoriasis can restrain himself from indulging in.

Psoriasis does not lead to any very important disorder. Nor is it an evidence of anything being radically wrong with the human economy. On the other hand, treatment of it is troublesome, prolonged, expensive, and generally ineffective. These are the several reasons for the rule.

Dr. J. F. Schamberg, of Philadelphia, has been advocating a certain line of dieting for many years. Some German physicians make use of a dieting plan of treatment differing considerably from that used by the Philadelphia skin specialist. They permit no fats and greases. In their diets there are no eggs, butter, cream, lard, oils, fat meats, nuts, or dressings that contain greases. Their patients get their food supply from breads, cereals, potatoes and other sugars, sweets and starches; from lean meat, skim milk, skim milk cheese and other protein substances. They get vitamins and minerals from vegetables and fruits. Whatever treatment for psoriasis is made use of it must be accepted as being experimental.

That's It.

Mrs. I. K. writes: What is the cause of a child four years of age getting up from his sleep nightly? He screams and calls for help. Could it be mad dreams? Perhaps the fact that I take him to the movies once a week has something to do with it.

REPLY.

Defense Hits Lamson Trial Blood Expert

Qualifications of Chemist Called by Prosecution Are Attacked.

Courthouse, San Jose, Calif., Sept. 8 (AP).—Attempts by the defense to prove some of the sinister looking spots found inside the Stanford University campus home of David A. Lamson were not made by blood brought a variety of testimony today at Lamson's trial on charges of slaying his wife, Allene.

George A. Weber, described as an electrical engineer and industrial chemist, whose avocation was criminology, ran into a flurry of prosecution objections when called as an expert witness for Lamson.

Judge H. R. Syer allowed Deputy District Attorney Herbert Bridges to question Weber about his qualifications.

The witness said he had made chemical tests for blood and figured as an expert in other cases. Bridges attacked his method of blood testing.

Judge Syer said he was not fully satisfied with the extent of Weber's practice, but allowed him to testify as an expert after he had told of making 1,500 blood tests.

The witness said he made tests of spots on a trapdoor leading from the hall into the attic, in the maid's closet and at several points in the rear part of the house. All these, he said, proved to be stains other than blood with the exception of a spot on the trapdoor. This, he said, was blood mixed with water.

Weber produced siftings taken from the bonfire which Lamson had been tending just before the death became known. It was from this fire the State took a length of iron pipe and bits of charred cloth and suggested the pipe was used by Lamson to beat his young wife to death. The witness said he sifted the remnants of the fire June 27, three weeks after the tragedy.

Chicago Seeks To Hold Hart

Maryland Will Fight to Return Famed Prison Breaker.

Chicago, Sept. 8 (AP).—Despite statements of Wilbert Crowley, assistant Cook County prosecutor, that Jack Hart, notorious fugitive from Maryland, would be brought to trial here, J. Bernard Wells, deputy State's attorney, from Baltimore, was here today to take him back to Maryland to serve out a life sentence for murder.

Wells said he expected to see the Cook County attorney tomorrow.

Hart was arraigned in a Police Court in suburban Cicero and held under $90,000 bond on three charges of assault to kill three men who played cards with him.

If Cook County convicts Hart Maryland will have to wait, until he has served the Illinois sentence before getting him back.

Hart, whose real name is James J. Connolly, escaped from the Maryland State Prison twice, and both times he was rearrested in Chicago. Arrested as "Red" Kelly, in Cicero, August 27, he was identified through fingerprints.

"Wall Street Wolf" Freed of Larceny

Complainant Accepts Story of Use of $1,000.

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—David Lamar, sometimes known as the "Wolf of Wall Street," was freed of a grand larceny charge in Tombs court today.

J. T. Connor, a grain merchant, upon whose complaint Lamar was arrested August 29, told Magistrate Benjamin Greenspan he accepted Lamar's explanation that $1,000 he gave him for a crude rubber deal had been spent forming a syndicate.

Fall Accidental, Sunday's Son Says

Near Death from Plunge Wife Says He Planned.

San Francisco, Sept. 8 (AP).—Near death in a hospital here, George M. Sunday, son of the famous evangelist, William A. (Billy) Sunday, still insisted today he had fallen, and not leaped from the fourth floor of his apartment here last night.

His wife, the former Mauryne Reichard, of Hollywood, told police of a violent scene yesterday in which her husband struck her in the eye and broke her finger, then threatened suicide.

Police quoted Mrs. Sunday as saying her husband often spoke of suicide. Harassed with financial worries, he had suffered a nervous breakdown, she said, and she had sent for his mother Mrs. Willim A. Sunday, to come for a visit.

Attacks On Americans Deplored by Germany

Berlin, Sept. 8 (AP).—The German government expressed its "deep regrets" today over the attacks by Nazis on two American citizens, Samuel Bossard, a student of Chester, Pa., and H. V. Kaltenborn, jr., son of a former editor of the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Eagle.

Bossard informed the consulate in Berlin, September 2, that he had been attacked by Nazi storm troopers while standing in front of his hotel. Kaltenborn was involved in a similar incident.

U. S. Seeks to End Car Strike Threat

Senator Wagner to Act As Mediator.

Cleveland, Sept. 8 (AP).—Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the NRA Labor Advisory Board, will come to Cleveland Monday in an effort to make permanent the truce in a proposed street railway strike here.

Mayor Ray Miller made this announcement today after he urged national officials to speed mediators to the city.

The strike, originally set for 8 a. m. today, was postponed indefinitely at the request of Department of Labor, NRA and National Street Car Workers Union officials.

Love-Balm Plot Against Star Hinted at Trial

Mrs. Read Admits Being Wife After Divorce From Broker.

Los Angeles, Sept. 8 (AP).—Mrs. Marian Read admitted on the witness stand today she had been as a wife to Alfred Read, jr., since the granting of an interlocutory decree of divorce and filing of her $100,000 alienation of affections suit against Claire Windsor.

"I would have done anything to get him back," she cried.

The brunette young matron admitted having gone to a San Francisco hotel with Read after their divorce and after she had filed the love-theft suit. A man walked in on them and she was "terribly humiliated."

Another time, after Read has "kidnaped" her and taken her into the country, she said, they kissed each other in a field.

Startled, Mrs. Read did not answer.

Judge Sproul told attorneys that if the defense proved Mrs. Read associated with Read as a wife after she obtained the interlocutory decree last October he would see her final decree was withheld.

Defense lawyers offered to file a supplemental answer to Mrs. Read's suit alleging that the Reads conspired to bring the action against Miss Windsor, but had not done so at the time court recessed.

Move to Oust Huey Backed in Georgia

Clubwomen Aid Louisiana in Fighting Kingfish.

Atlanta, Sept. 8 (AP).—The Oakdale Garden Club has started a movement to aid in "ousting Senator Huey Long of Louisiana from the United States Senate."

This movement was set forth in resolutions adopted at the last meeting of the club at the home of Mrs. Chester W. Johnson, the president, who introduced them.

They set out that inasmuch as Louisiana women "are up in arms over the conduct of the Senator from Louisiana in attacking President Roosevelt's NRA program in a speech at Milwaukee," the Atlanta club will cooperate with them.

German Goods Boycott Voted By World Jews

Geneva Conference Adopts Rabbi Wise's Motion "in Self-Defense."

Geneva, Sept. 8 (AP).—A resolution calling for a boycott on German goods, described by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York, as a self-defense measure which will be used until "racial megalomania has been abandoned," was adopted at the closing session of the World Jewish Conference today.

Dr. Wise introduced the resolution with the explanation that it did not constitute a declaration of war, but simply was a self-defense instrument.

The New Yorker enlivened the session by publicly announcing that a representative of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's newspaper, the Volkischer Beobachter, was attending the session.

The rabbi said he would "be rent limb from limb" if he made in Germany speeches similar to those he had made here.

4 Poison Deaths Denied by Lawyer

Trial Set for Nov. 27 After He Pleads Not Guilty.

Benton, Ark., Sept. 8 (AP).—Mark H. Shank today pleaded not guilty to four charges of murder and one of attempt to murder in the poison deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Colley and their two children, and his trial was set for November 27.

He will be tried first for the murder of Alvin Colley. Circuit Judge T. E. Toler acceded to the request of defense attorneys named by the court yesterday that ample time be given them to prepare a defense.

Shank, an attorney of Akron, Ohio, will be held without bond until the trial.

U. S. Pay-Raise Hope Dispelled By Roosevelt

President Denies 1935 Full Budget Estimates Show Federal Policy.

President Roosevelt yesterday set at rest speculation that budgetary preparations for estimating 1935 Federal salaries on a 100 per cent basis might mean abrogation of the 15 per cent pay cut.

He said at yesterday's press conference that the Budget Bureau's instructions to department heads to make no allowance for the cut in next year's estimates does not indicate what the administration policy will be.

He said the Budget Bureau is bound by the law to estimate salaries on full basis. The pay cut would be applied according to the percentage difference between living costs in 1928 and when the next appropriations go into effect.

Detailing conditions "disturbing to morale" growing out of economy legislation, the executive council asked:

"A most vigorous and unmistakable stand in behalf of the merit system, a thoroughgoing, scientific classification of Government positions and rates of pay not only for the District, but for the field also; an end to the policy of dismissals, wage cuts, furloughs, nonfilling of vacancies, discharge of married persons and other rigid and basically unsound restrictions affecting Federal personnel which have accompanied the so-called economy acts."

The council pointed out that 600,000 Federal employes, in fear of losing their jobs, can not contribute to revived purchasing power until the hazard is removed.

Five other organizations yesterday announced their intention to press for curtailment of the pay cut—the Washington Chamber of Commerce, the American Federation of Labor, the Columbia Typographical Union, the Central Labor Union and the American Federation of Government Employes.

Mother Claims Slain Man Threatened Daughter After Separation.

Retaining composure in the face of questioning by detectives, Mrs. Rudolph Buccolo, whose husband was found shot to death in her room, stubbornly maintained silence atbout the affair last night.

To all questions, the 38-year-old Civil Service Commission employe replied: "Talk to my attorney."

No Formal Charge Made.

Although police said they were convinced Mrs. Buccolo shot her husband as they quarreled in her bedroom, no formal charges have been entered against her.

The couple separated August 14, Mrs. Buccolo going to live with her mother, Mrs. Carrie Mack, at 4104 Fifth street northwest. They met several times since the separation, police said, although they did not become reconciled.

Detectives last night checked a report the slain coffee salesman was called to the telephone early yesterday and asked to visit Mrs. Mack's house. Police who answered the shooting call said they found a breakfast table set for four persons.

Six Bullets in His Body.

Mrs. Mack, they said, told them the shooting occurred while Mr. and Mrs. Buccolo were preparing for breakfast. Buccolo was found in his wife's bedroom, six bullets in his body. Nearby was a .32-caliber revolver.

Police records showed Mrs. Buccolo purchased the revolver at the time of her separation "for protection." The Buccolos were married 13 years.

Hamilton Bank Case Continued To Next Week

Justice Jennings Bailey yesterday postponed until Monday hearing arguments on legality of including the United States Savings Bank in the Hamilton National Bank.

Attorneys for Col. Wade H. Cooper, president of the bank, and others representing the Treasury Department and the Hamilton Bank, will then argue validity of a contract which, if approved by the court, would enable the United Bank to join the merger.

Seven Contracts Approved.

Col. Cooper opposes entrance of his bank, of which he owns 56 per cent of the capital stock, saying it is sufficiently liquid to open independently.

He has asked the District Supreme Court for orders to enable him to attempt reorganization without molestation by Hamilton or Treasury officers.

Contracts enabling seven restricted banks to enter the Hamilton merger were approved by Justice Bailey Thursday. Opening of the Hamilton Bank awaits only approval of the United Bank contract, though merger sponsors say they can proceed without the Cooper bank.
